Cycling "Nomads" Peddle Through City

By Dick Steging
(Democrat-Capital Staff Writer)

If John Steinbeck could do it with Charley, so can Fred Bauer and family. Bauer, his wife and three children left Princeton, New Jersey, on June 7 to cross the United States on bicycles.

They stopped in Sedalia Saturday to repair their bicycles, stock the canteens and packsacks, and left, heading for points west.

Bauer, 29, feels that "perserverance is the name of the game" and that to become "welded to a thing is somewhat self-destructive."

Bauer is a fascinating sort of nomad — he says that it's a compulsive thing with him. He has wandered across Europe and New England, spending considerable time at sea.

Another thing compulsive with Bauer is writing. He has been with newspapers and magazines for over fifteen years.

"Writing is the toughest work I know. Most people simply don't understand that after five, six or even seven hours of attempting to sound like something on paper you come away absolutely gutted."

Bauer said that he had co-authored a book with George Beverly Shea, entitled "Then Sings My Soul." He was, at one point, the managing editor of the "Guiding Light" — one the largest inter-faith magazines in the country.

Bauer has taught, owned pizza parlors, lectured to writer's conferences and is now doing a book of his own which he hopes will appear under the aegis of Random House this winter.

"Discover America by bicycle, not by car. Meet the people — they will meet you more than half-way," Bauer said.

"The most important thing in the world is that you do something — for God's sake get out and do something".

"It's like this," Bauer said. "You wake up and find that you're near 55 or 60 and you really haven't got a hell of lot to say about those years — unless you do something to dispose of all the

The Fred Bauer family, currently cycling across the country, stopped into Sedalia Saturday for repairs and supplies before heading to points west.

Not visible in the picture is the youngest Bauer, riding in a basket-like apparatus on the back of Mr. Bauer's bicycle.

Seek To Crush VC Buildup

SAIGON (AP) —U.S. Air Force B52s poured bombs by the hundreds of tons into 11 suspected enemy concentration and supply areas in provinces around Saigon while allied ground troops worked closer to the capital seeking to crush enemy preparations for a major assault expected this week, the U.S. Command reported Saturday.

There was speculation that perhaps the biggest battle of the war was shaping up to coincide with the visit, starting Sunday, of Secretary of Defense Clark M. Clifford.

Saigon's nerves jangled Saturday night with an outburst of gunfire in the center of the city and a spectacular blaze in a power plant along the Saigon River. But neither incident proved out to be connected with enemy activity.

The eight-jet B52s carried out their raids Friday and Saturday. After one of the air attacks, allied ground troops found 105 enemy bodies on an infiltration route near the Cambodian border about 125 miles southwest of Saigon.

U.S. communiques said the bombers, which unload their bombs to impact like one exploding blanket, struck at "supply and storage areas, base camps, troops concentrations and fortifications."

American ground troops operating closer to the capital turned up new weapons caches and a crudely built Viet Cong hospital.

A weapons cache found nine miles west of Saigon contained the warheads for five 107mm rockets which have a range of five miles. Another cache was uncovered 40 miles northwest of the capital. It contained 617 hand grenades and 81 mortar rounds.

The hospital was found 18 miles south of Saigon. It consisted of three huts and a small quantity of medical supplies.

Rockets now are a common weapon among enemy forces rining the capital.

Intelligence reports place six enemy divisions in the area with perhaps 1,000 Viet Cong suicide troops already infiltrated inside the city to attack, possibly before Saturday, the anniversary of the signing of the Geneva agreements in 1954 ending the French-Indochina war.

For this reason, Saigonese

Serious Peace Talk Finally Is Started

PARIS (AP) — U.S. and North Vietnamese negotiators have finally started some serious talk on Vietnamese peace-making issues during their privte coffee-break meetings here.

These secret, informal, and brief probings have so far failed to produce any opening toward a break in the deadlock on de-escalation of the war in Vietnam.

They have encouraged U.S. officials, however, in the belief that serious negotiations with North Vietnamese representatives probably can be achieved at some future point.

The formal talks themselves are totally stalled and the coffee-break sessions, which come as recesses in the middle of the formal meetings, have been covered by official secrecy and double-talk until Saturday, when U.S. Ambassador W. Averell Harriman made a terse reference to them in a television interview.

He was asked whether they were talks of substance, and replied: "Well, yes and no. There are a lot of trivialities and personal discussions, but one can't help but touch on serious matters. And we're getting into a little bit more of the idea of what's important in each other's mind."

At another point Harriman said there had been no indication so far that North Vietnam had—or would—cut back its military operations to get President Johnson to end the rest of the bombing of North Vietnamese territory—the issue on which the conference is stalled.

"All the indications so far are that they will take advantage of the military aspects (of the limitation on bombing)," Harriman said, "yet . . . they haven't shelled Saigon for a couple of weeks. That's a good sign."

The question of whether the recent lull in the fighting in the South is the result of some deliberate policy move by Hanoi is undoubtedly one which U.S. officials have raised with North Vietnamese authorities.

Hasler Convicted By Court

CLAYTON, Mo. (AP)— Judge John D. Hasler was found guilty today of oppression in office. He had been indicted and tried for allegedly favoring the woman defendant in a divorce case in his court.

The jury recommended a $1 fine.

A jury of six men and six women returned the verdict about 2:45 p.m., five hours and 45 minutes after resuming deliberations Saturday. The panel was closeted for about five hours Friday night.

The maximum penalty prescribed by law for the misdemeanor offense is one year in the county jail and a $1,000 fine.

Hasler still faces impeachment proceedings before the Missouri Supreme Court because of his conduct in the case which was described by Chief Justice Lawrence Holman as

Clinton Man Chosen For Air Group Office

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo. (AP)—Raymond Hall of Hurdland was elected president today of the Missouri Flying Farmers during the organization's annual convention in Cape Girardeau.

Darrell Dehn of Clinton was elected vice president and Ralph Deal of Drexel was named secretary-treasurer.

About 100 members, arriving in about 60 aircraft, attended the meeting.

The convention delegates adopted a resolution opposing a proposed tax on general aviation aircraft, saying the funds would be used to subsidize commercial aviation.

The Weather

Clear to partly cloudy and continued warm through Monday with a chance of afternoon and evening thunder showers, mostly southern portions. Low Sunday night 68 to 75. High Sunday 88 to 95.

Sunset Sunday will be at 8:38 p.m.; sunrise Monday will be at 6 a.m.

Long Will Be Guest At Picnic

United States Senator Edward V. Long will be the honored guest at an old fashioned fried chicken picnic in Liberty Park, Thursday night, which is being co-sponsored by friends from Pettis and Saline counties. The picnic will start at 7 p.m.

Senator Long, who is a candidate for the nomination on the Democratic ticket and for re-election, will be given the opportunity to speak at the intermission of the regular Thursday night band concert. The concert is being given by Sedalia's band under the direction of Lloyd Knox.

Everyone is invited to participate. Free meat, bread, drink and table service is being furnished. Those who desire can bring a covered dish.

The picnic will be served at two enclosed shelter houses near the band stand area.

Bruce Claycomb, Pettis County and Harry Hanley, Saline County, are co-chairman of the picnic and campaign for Senator Long.

Rockefeller Proposes Vietnam Peace Plan

NEW YORK (AP)—Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller proposed Saturday a peace plan for Vietnam based on a mutual pullback of military forces by both sides. If Hanoi refuses, he said, the United States should unilaterally withdraw its troops to populated areas.

Rockefeller thus moved to what appeared to be a more "dovish" position on the war, contrasting with the self-imposed silence of his opponent for the Republican presidential nomination, frontrunner Richard M. Nixon.

"Mr. Nixon has refused to discuss any phase of the war," the New York governor told newsmen in a question-and-answer session. Nixon has said he does not want to discuss Vietnam while the peace negotiations go on in Paris.

The emphasis in Rockefeller's policy statement was on a four-point peace plan calling for gradual withdrawal by both sides, a neutral force to buffer the opposing forces and free elections. The elections would include the Viet Cong if the Cong "renounces force."

Rockefeller said in response to a question that his plan, if put into effect immediately, "could end hostilities in six months."

The governor suggested several steps that could be taken if the North Vietnamese do not respond to his proposal, including the pullback to populated areas, a move he conceded would be a "unilateral" pullback.

"This," he said, "would be a dramatic demonstration of good faith on our side."

"We should deploy American forces to protect the populated areas," he said, "thus sharply reducing far-flung 'search and destroy' operations that cost most American casualties."

Ten thousand American troops could be withdrawn each month for a year, providing North Vietnamese infiltration does not increase, Rockefeller said. Meanwhile, the South Vietnamese army could be re-equipped and strengthened.

Rockefeller did not mention the bombing of North Vietnam. He said this was deliberate, because bombing was the key question "under immediate discussion" in the Paris talks. Rockefeller said this was not the same as former Vice President Nixon's position of silence, because he was proposing a detailed blueprint for peace, whereas Nixon has not.

Will Nominate Ted As Nation's Leader

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's name will be placed in nomination for the top spot on the Democratic presidential ticket by Michael V. Disalle, former Ohio governor and federal official.

Announcing this Saturday, DiSalle said his plan will come as a surprise to the Massachusetts senator, younger brother of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy of New York, whose own bid for the presidential nomination was cut off by an assassin's bullet.

Sen. Kennedy could not be reached for comment. His office declined to comment.

DiSalle was active in Robert Kennedy's campaign but he described his move on behalf of Edward Kennedy as strictly a one-man operation at this point. He said he has not discussed it with the Kennedy family or associates, or with any party leaders.

DiSalle declined to speculate on his course should Kennedy request that his name not be placed in nomination.

DiSalle's announcement took the form of a letter to each of the more than 1,700 fellow delegates to the Democratic convention whose names and addresses he has been able to obtain, plus members of Congress and various political leaders. He distributed copies at news conference.

"The problem now is that there is no excitement left for those elements of the party which lost a purpose with the assassination," DiSalle told newsmen.

He said that was evidenced by the number of voters who stayed away from the polls in the New York primary after the elder Kennedy was slain.

Tractors Compete At Fair

Ninety-one tractors from across Missouri were in Smithton Saturday to compete in the tractor pulling contest at the Smithton Town and Country Fair.

The contest is run by the rules set up by the Missouri Tractor Pulling Contest. Specifications for the tractors were also based on these rules. A minimum of 14 pounds of pressure were used in the tractor tires. The draw bar on the tractor could not be more than 20 inches from the ground and 12 inches from the center of the rear axle.

The tractors were placed into eight categories: 1 to 1,000 pounds, (garden tractors), 1,001 to 3,100 to 4,500, 4,501 to 5,500, 5,501, 7,001 to 9,000, 9,001 to 12,000 and 12,001 to 16,000.

Results for the contest are as follows:

0 to 1,000: First, John Turley; second, Clarence Eichholz; third, Mike Knause.

1,001 to 3,000: First, Roger Jaeger; (only entry).

3,001 to 4500: First, Kenneth Eddy; second, Warren Anderson; third, Lawrence Grupe.

True Davis Will Speak Here Today

The fish fry will get under way at noon; Davis will speak at 1:30 p.m.

Bulletin

This is the second fatality of the year in the city of Sedalia.

A woman identified as Mrs. Mary I. Howe, about 70 years old, 1617 West Ninth, was fatally injured about 10:10 p.m. Saturday when she was struck by a car at the intersection of Broadway and Beacon.

Police reported it was believed she was walking south across Broadway and was about the middle of the intersection when struck by the automobile. She was rushed to the Bothwell Hospital by Sedalia Ambulance Service where Dr. F. E. Manatt rendered emergency treatment.

Mrs. Howe died about 10:35. She had suffered a fracture of the skull at the basal area, compound fractures of both legs and both ankles, and a fracture of the jaw. The body was taken to the Gillespie Funeral Home.

The car, a Lincoln Continental, was being driven east on Broadway by a man who was identified as Raymond C. Smith, of Huntington, W. Va., and who was stopping at the Star Dust Motel. Smith was in a state of shock and was taken to police headquarters where he was giving a statement to the police later in the evening.

Local Airport Boasts Radio Homing Beacon

Pilots using the Sedalia airport may now take advantage of a new radio homing beacon that recently became operational.

Plans to install the beacon were laid after it became apparent that the VOR facility at Blackwater would be decommissioned, according to Dr. Holmes Wilbur, chairman of the Airport Board.

The low-frequency homing beacon is radiated from an aerial stretched between two 60-foot poles placed 300 feet apart. A shed has been constructed to house the electronic equipment associated with it.

The non-directional beacon has passed Federal Aviation Administration ground tests, and will be flight-tested next week, according to Wilbur. He added that pilots have picked up the signal as far away as Kansas City and Kirksville.

Wilbur listed the two main benefits to Sedalia from the new beacon: It qualifies Sedalia to receive air mail and permits pilots to land here in bad weather.

Elaborating on the latter point, Wilbur said that prior to the installation of the beacon, a minimum ceiling of 1,000 feet and 3 miles visibility were required for landings here. With the aid of the beacon, this requirement will be lowered to an approximate ceiling of 500 feet and 1 mile visibility.

It was also pointed out that Trans-Mo Airline planes will now be able to land here in bad weather, where they had previously been unable to do so.

The beacon's installation literally puts Sedalia on the map — aviation maps, that is — since new maps will reflect that Sedalia now has homing beacon facilities.

"We will stand out like a lighthouse in a storm," said Wilbur.

Dr. Wilbur expressed appreciation of the Sedalia Airport Board to Cash Hardware, for the loan of tools to Clinton Black, Wayne Lett, Cy Cobb and Otto Balke.

The identification letters which are continually repeated from the beacon are D-dog, M-Mary and O-ocean.

Queen of Fair

Mary Lamm, 21, Route 2, Sedalia, is shown at the tractor pulling contest giving trophies to the winners. Mary was crowned queen of the Smithton Town and Country Fair Friday night by Max Birdsong, president of the Fair board. Miss Lamm is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Lamm and is a graduate of Smithton High School and the University of Missouri. Receiving his trophy is Ercel Kirpatrick, Jameson.

Ann Landers

Heartache of Cat, Hard to Swallow

Dear Ann Landers: I hope you won't think this letter is too crazy to print. I am 14 years old and can't get over the death of my cat.

Tom was hit by a car. He barely made it home and I could see he was in bad shape. I had to argue with Mom to let me take Tom to the vet. The vet said Tom would be all right but I'd have to leave him in the hospital for a few days. Well, when I went to get him, the doctor said Tom would never be well and maybe it would be best to put him to sleep.

I cried half the night, Ann, and I just can't seem to get out of the depression. Tom was like a human friend. When I was blue he'd do tricks for me and make me laugh. He was so faithful and loving.

This morning my parents brought me a little kitten, but that kitten is just not my cat. Please tell me how to get over this heartache. — MISSING MY FRIEND

Dear Friend: One of the tests of maturity as well as an essential ingredient of peace of mind is the ability to accept that which we cannot change.

Tom is gone and there's nothing you can do about it, so open up your heart to the kitten and give him a chance.

Dear Ann Landers: A mother in our neighborhood has made it clear that her five-year-old boy may not play with girls and her six-year-old girl may not play with boys.

This woman insists that all the trouble in the world starts with sex and she is going to see to it that her kids have nothing to do with it. You don't need to tell me she is a nut because I already know it.

I am writing to find out how I can keep her nuttiness from having a bad effect on the other children in the neighborhood, namely mine. My four- and five-year-olds have have asked me why the woman tells them to go home. I don't know what to say. Any suggestions? — TREED

Dear Treed: Tell your children they are not to go where they are not welcome, and give no reason. In the meantime, let's hope those unfortunate kids get enough exposure to members of the opposite sex at school to offset the emotionally disabling influence of their sick mother.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a girl of 16 who is respectable and knows right from wrong. I've been going steady with Teddy for eight months. We have never anything we are ashamed of. Both of us flunked French so we are taking it over in summer school. This means we have to study a lot. We study better together — which is the problem.

I have two bratty brothers who will not give us any privacy. The only way Teddy and I can get any studying done is to go upstairs in my bedroom and lock the door. Last night my father blew his cool because we were in the bedroom and the door was locked. He embarrassed me so badly I cried. My mother sided with me and that started an argument between Mom and Dad. Now Teddy is afraid to come over and my whole life might be ruined. Help me, please. — HUMILIATED

Dear Hum: Your mother may be on your side but I'm with your dad. A bedroom is not the proper setting for a 16-year-old girl and her boyfriend for studying — or for anything else.

It's up to your parents to control your bratty brothers. You should be permitted to have a guest in the living room and your mom and dad should see to it that you have privacy.

Viet Civilian Casualties On The Increase

SAIGON (AP) —The number of civilian war casualties in South Vietnam so far this year is more than for all of last year, the U.S. mission said today.

To help care for wounded civilians, the mission said, U.S. military hospitals will continue a policy begun last fall of admitting Vietnamese patients on a space-available basis.

A total of 49,037 Vietnamese with war wounds entered Vietnamese and U.S. military hospitals in 1967. Through May of this year, 47,411 had been treated and figures for June and July undoubtedly have brought the total above the 1967 figure, officials said.

The total number of civilian war casualties in Vietnam is debatable. Some officials have said that since official figures list only those treated at allied hospitals, the total may be three times as great—as many as 150,000 last year. Most civilians with fatal wounds never reach the hospital.

Valuable 'Junk'

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — A Seattle engineering firm says Americans each produce an average of seven pounds of junk a day—and all of it is worth money. A report by R. W. Beck & Associates says solid waste could be turned into fuel for steam electric power generators. The firm estimated an incinerator that would burn 400 tons of junk a day could produce 100,000 pounds of steam an hour, worth about $1,200 a day.

New Role For Poor In Program

WASHINGTON (AP)— Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz announced Friday that the poor are going to help run the concentrated employment program from now on.

The program, started in 1967 at the direction of President Johnson, brings together various national and local manpower and antipoverty programs to help the disadvantaged in the worst areas of unemployment to get ready for, find and hold permanent jos, the Labor Department explained.

Effective Monday, July 15, Wirtz has ordered local sponsors—usually a city or community action agency—to credit at least half their staff members from among residents in poverty neighborhoods that are served.

Six months after the contract has been in operation, all positions as they become vacant and all new positions must be filled by neighborhood residents, Wirtz said.

The order affects ½? cities and rural area recently granted Concentrated Employment Program contracts involved nearly $90 million in federal funds. The order does not apply to the 22 CEP contracts funded before July 1, 1967. When those 22 contracts come up for refunding, mostly during the next six months, further changes will be made, Wirtz said.

Capitol Highlights

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department advises persons swimming to the Soviet Union to be sure to carry the necessary papers.

The question came up because two distance swimming buffs from Jersey City, N.J., Steve Friedland and Ben Schlossberg, want to take a dip in the Bering Strait.

The State Department told them Thursday no diplomatic problems would be raised by their primary goal, a 20-hour swim from Alaska to Little Diomede Island, since Little Diomede is U.S. territory.

But Schlossberg and Friedland said they wanted also to keep going another 20 minutes to Big Diomede Island—Soviet territory. State Department officials said if they press on to this objective they should carry passports with Soviet visas.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mail service on Saturdays will continue for the time being, the Post Office Department says, despite reports it is considering cutting service back to five days a week to save funds.

"We have not made any announcement and no instructions have been given to curtail service," a department spokesman said Thursday. "Patrons will get their mail as usual on Saturday."

Electric Theater Remodeled

The 4-H Electric Theater, one of the more than 35 free attractions at the 1968 Missouri State Fair, has been remodeled "from the walls up" by its joint sponsors, the Missouri Farm Electrification Council and the University of Missouri Extension Division, Ed Walters, chairman of the 4-H Electric Theater project from the Missouri Coop of Sedalia said today.

The $2,500 remodeling includes central air conditioning, carpeting, new theater seats, electric marquee, indirect lighting and panelling plus labor provided free by the Missouri Farm Electrification Council.

Blue ribbon winners in 4-H will stage morning and afternoon demonstrations in the Electric Theater each day of Fair Week, August 17-25.

Demonstrations include all 4-H activities like cooking arts, electrical wiring and woodworking. Only blue ribbon 4-H winners are invited to perform at the theater. Individual power suppliers pay expenses for the participating 4-H'ers.

The 4-H Electric Theater has been a free fair attraction since 1959.

Its recent rennovation has been the first substantial improvement in the building since 1959.

Addiction Attacked In Bills

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a two-edged attack on drug addiction the House has passed bills that would provide more facilities for treatment and stiffen penalties for illegal trafficking in narcotics.

The two bills were sent to the Senate Friday by overwhelming votes.

Possession for personal use without a prescription of LSD and other hallucinogens, plus depressant and stimulant drugs for the first time would be a misdemeanor under one bill.

But the same measure also takes into consideration the plight of the youthful, first time offender.

Rep. Paul G. Rogers, D-Fla., told the House that testimony has showed three to five per cent of the nation's high school and college age students have experimented with the mind-bending drug LSD.

Penalties under the bill range from a $1,000 fine and one-year prison term or both for first offenders to three years and $10,000 for subsequent violations.

Courts, however, would be free under a section of the bill to suspend sentences of those convicted for the first time.

The bill also makes it a felony and provides penalties of five years in prison and $10,000 fine for illegal manufacture, sale or distribution to others.

A first offense is now a misdemeanor with subsequent offenses carrying penalties of three years in prison and $10,000 fine.

Penalties under this section would be doubled for sales to those under 21.

The bill was passed by a 319-2 vote.

The other measure, cleared by 325-1, would provide $211 million over two years for various health programs, including alcoholism and drug addiction.

Included within the bill is a congressional finding that chronic alcoholism can better be treated as "a major health and social problem rather than within the system of criminal justice.

and Americans scattered and took cover when gunfire broke out Saturday night.

It occurred on Nguyen Hue—the Street of Flowers— and racers streaked over downtown buildings. Investigation determined that the fire was an exchange between South Vietnamese soldiers and police near the national Treasury building.

Details as to the origin of the shooting were unclear, but it apparently resulted from a dispute between official personnel. Authorities said no one was hurt, but witnesses said one Vietnamese soldier was seen being taken away with a head wound.

There were several bursts from automatic weapons and reaction was typical for Saigon. Traffic and pedestrians in the immediate area continued on their normal way at first. Then military police jeeps raced around telling Americans to get off the streets. Persons eating, drinking and playing slot machines in a nearby U.S. officer's billet hit the floor.

A few minutes later streets in the vicinity were mostly empty and silent. South Vietnamese troops cordoned off the area around the Treasury building. Their reply to questions from newsmen was: "No VC, no contact."

A few minutes later a fire broke out across the Saigon River and there were reports of several explosions.

terrific energy which is uniquely your own."

In a sense, Bauer is an anachronism, people like him are drying up, folding their tents, and heading for nine to five.

Bauer worries a lot about the "generation gap," and thinks that it exists because the "kids today aren't especially security minded — they are susceptible to adventure."

The Bauers and their three children are 1200 miles out of their native New England.

He said he had dropped his transistor radio somewhere in Penn., but that this part of the country had earned a reputation for almost unpredictable weather and thought they "had better get one."

The final destination is Los Angeles — three weeks away.

The last thing Bauer said was: "I wonder if I'll see any buffalo?" He just might.

EXCESS SUN CAN AGE YOUR SKIN

The American Medical Association published a report in their journal, which stated that, "There is indisputable evidence that continued exposure to the sun weathers and ages the skin . . . The connective tissues of the skin undergoes degenerative changes . . . Some of these changes are pre-malignant, the end results of which can be skin cancer . . . Complete immunity to the effects of the sun is non-existent."

Gently apply a good suntan preparation, to screen out the dangerous ultra-violet rays. Do not forcibly rub this protection into the skin. After sun exposure, rub into the skin a good nourishing cream to replace some of the natural oil burnt out by the sun. Let us help you select a good product.

Instant Hemingway—for Only a Dollar

By SAUL PETT
AP Special Correspondent

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — "He had four wives," the wiry little guide said, in a nasal monotone which somehow managed an edge of indifference, a touch of mockery and a hint of sin.

"First, there was Hadley, and Hadley introduced him to Pauline and he left Hadley. Then he ran off with the blonde to Spain. Pauline was kind of narrow minded about that so she divorced him. Later, he'd come here with the fourth wife, Mary.

"There, you see a picture"—the guide pointed to a newspaper photograph—"of the woman who became the nurse in 'A Farewell to Arms.' You may've seen Helen Hayes or Jennifer Jones in that. And here is a picture—another newspaper photograph—of the woman who was the countess in 'Across the River and Into the Tress.'

"So you can see he did pretty well for himself with the women."

For one dollar you can get a tour of the house in which a man named Ernest Hemingway once lived.

At the height of the season one tour begins just as one ends. And on this particular day the dollar-lecture did not include a single suggestion that in "The Hemingway Home" there lived a man who lighted words like candles in a cathedral and became a giant in the literature of the world.

The facts are few, but the tour buzzes right along, up to the second floor studio where Hemingway worked in the little house near the pool. Here, the guide tells the folks that Hemingway wrote at the round little Spanish table, sitting on a "cigar-maker's chair brought from Cuba," and that the room still looks as it was, except, "of course, when he was here it was so full of junk you had to fight your way in."

The tour ends back in the living room of the main house where the folks get all the time they need to buy souvenirs. Among other things, they can get bricks from "Mr. Hemingway's yards for 50 cents plus tax," tiles from the garage for $2.00 plus tax, ash trays, nail clippers, paper-back books, wallets, spoons, T-shirts and, for 50 cents, whisky shot-glasses, all with "The Hemingway Home" stamped on them.

But the house is the house where Ernest Hemingway lived in the thirties and visited occasionally thereafter, a graceful Spanish Colonial built in a square with a balcony all the way round, slender black iron columns and grille work and the soft umbrella of ancient banion trees. It is the house where Hemingway wrote part or all of "For Whom the Bell Tolls," "To Have and Have Not," "The Green Hills of Africa," "The Snows of Kilimanjaro" and "The Macomber Affair."

He owned it until his death in 1961 after which it was sold by his estate.

Elsewhere in Key West, there are people who knew Ernest Hemingway and do not visit the house. They prefer their memories.

"Drinking or sober, he always walked quietly into a room and sat in a quiet place," said Toby Bruce. "He was a kind man and a gentle man. He could walk into a bar where no one knew him and before long there'd be eight guys around him talking about timber-cutting in Michigan or hunting in the Dakotas or fishing off the Keys. He talked, like he wrote, in great detail.

"He was a man of many moods, an actor living his work," said Betty Bruce. "One day very jovial and out-going, another terribly sad. I'll never forget one of our visits to his home in Cuba. He talked on and on in the most depressing way.

"As it turned out later, he was talking line for line large sections of the book he was then writing, 'Across the River and Into the Trees.' I know the critics panned the book but someday, I'm sure, it'll be recognized for what it was, a classic expression of the confusion and fright of a man losing his vitality as a man."

The Bruces knew Hemingway in his Key West days and the days that followed in Cuba and Idaho. Toby Bruce, a short, thin man of great reserve, now runs an appliance store. In other days, he drank and fished with Hemingway, looked after his boat, the 'Pilar,' his cars and the odd jobs that needed doing at the house.

"There were no drinking bouts when he was working," Toby Bruce recalls. "He took his work very seriously. He began early in the day and worked standing up.

"A bad day was when he wrote 320 words. A good day was 750. He wouldn't push it after several bad days. He'd just chop it off and go fishing."

One day Hemingway forgot to close the windows of his work room. The next morning Toby Bruce said he found manuscript pages scattered all around the room and on the lawn below. To this day, he remembers picking up one page perilously close to the swimming pool and becoming absorbed in the description of a woman with close cropped hair. That was Maria in "For Whom the Bell Tolls."

Hemingway, Bruce recalls, was proud of what he called his filing system. That consisted of clipping papers and correspondence to each other or a laundry slip and filing them on an unused bed of his work room.

When he left Key West, Hemingway left many of his papers stored in the back room of a bar run by a friend. Years later, after his death, Toby Bruce and others found in those cartons uncashed royalty checks for $180, $200 and lesser amounts, used street car transfers and ticket stubs for bull fights—"he never threw anything away"—as well as things that counted, like the letter believed to be from the woman who became the heroine of "A Farewell to Arms."

The Bruces recall, too, that a year or two before his death they travelled by car with Hemingway to Idaho.

They came to a small town in Nebraska, where they would spend the night. A young waitress, her head full of curlers, approached the writer, one of only six Americans to win a Nobel Prize for literature, who was then wearing his famous white beard.

"You're somebody, aren't you?" she asked. "The kids over there say you are."

"Who do they think I am?" Hemingway asked.

"Burl Ives."

"I'm not. But I know a man who knows him."

"Mister, you're somebody. I know you're not Burl Ives. Who are you?"

"Have you ever read anything, in school or anywhere else, by a man named Ernest Hemingway?"

"No."

"Well, I'm Hemingway."

"I knew it! I saw you on the cover of Life."

The Man's Castle

It was a place in Key West, Fla., to write and relax, but now the Spanish Colonial home of Ernest Hemingway, top, is open to the public, below, at one dollar a head. (AP)

Missouri Town Enters Air Age in a Big Way

HIGGINSVILLE, Mo. — This Missouri city is embarking on a project to build a general aviation airport to cost in excess of $350,000.

Plans for the huge project, the largest of its kind this year in Missouri, culminated Thursday, when Gov. Warren E. Hearnes presented Mayor R.M. Sheehan of Higginsville a check for $25,000 under the state's matching grant program for the financing of airport projects.

Others present in the governor's office for the presentation of the matching grant chefk were Sen. John C. Ryan, Sedalia; Rep. Melvin Vogelsmeier, Concordia and John A. Owens, state aviation director with the State Division of Commerce, which is responsible for the state aviation program.

In addition to the mayor and state officials, Forest Hoefer, president of the Higginsville Industrial Development Corporation; Earl Flesch, alderman and chairman of the Higginsville Airport Board; City Clerk Oswald Rolf; Newspaper Editor W. A. Butts, Jr., and Glen Christopher were present.

Citizens of Higginsville voted and passed an airport bond issue amounting to $125,000 for the airport project. This sum plus $56,000 provided from general revenue by the city and the $25,000 state grant was added to by a federal grant of $147,000 enabling the city to have a total of $353,000 for airport construction.

The project consists of acquiring necessary acreage; construction of a hard surfaced runway 3300 feet long and 60 feet wide; connecting taxiways and aircraft parking areas and turnaround; lighted windcone beacon; runway lights and obstruction removal and other requirements for a general aviation airport.

John Owens, state director of aviation, said the Higginsville project was one of the most ambitious airport programs ever undertaken in the state by a city of comparable size. "This project is but one of many that we hope to soon see in Missouri to enable our state to take its rightful place as a leader in aviation activities," he added.

WARSAW — A team of real estate representatives and engineers from the Missouri River Division office of the Corps of Engineers, Omaha, and the Kansas City District Office will inspect the Kaysinger Bluff project next week, Brig. Gen. C. Craig Cannon, Missouri River Division engineer, has announced.

As part of the visit, one or more members of the team will be available at the Corps' real estate office in Osceola and Warsaw to discuss the land acquisition program with property owners whose lands are involved in the development of the dam and reservoir.

General Cannon said that the schedule calls for division and district team members to be in the Corps' Osceola office on July 16 and 17, moving to the Warsaw office on July 18. All interested landowners are invited to visit the offices and offer any comments or present any grievances they might have.

Families Victims Of Cruel Hoaxes

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Hoax telephone calls told 19 Portland families Friday that a close relative had been killed.

A voice described as adult female told them to go to a local hospital to identify the body.

Eight or nine families did rush to the hospital, but the others telephoned and were assured by the hospital that they had been the victims of a hoax.

When the Diligenti quintuplets were born in Argentina 25 years ago, their father prevented exploitation or commercialization of their uniqueness. Since that time, they have been together seldom, the first when almost a year old (bottom photo) and another time when they celebrated their 15th birthday at Buenos Aires (top photo). (AP)

Diligentis: Quiet Family

By ROMAN JIMENEZ
Associated Press Writer

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — The Diligenti quintuplets will celebrate their 25th birthday on July 15 in typical fashion: without celebration and without a reunion.

When the three girls and two boys were born in Buenos Aires in 1943, their father, Franco, an Italian immigrant who had made a fortune in textiles, decided to spare the children what he felt was the circus-like publicity which surrounded Canada's famous Dionne quintuplets.

At first, he tried to keep the birth a secret. When word leaked out, he refused to let newsmen, or anyone else, see the quints.

Mrs. Diligenti, a former Italian opera singer, disagreed with her husband's passion for anonymity, but Diligenti persisted and the children grew up "normally".

Although they are the world's only living set of adult quintuplets, only occasional news items remind the world of their existence.

Diligenti told friends that he wanted the infants to become individuals and to lead fully independent lives.

"That's exactly how we grew up, as individuals," said Maria Fernanda, one of the quints. "We always had the feeling we were normal children."

The youngsters never dressed alike and they attended separate high schools. They were sent to college abroad.

To avoid publicity, Diligenti built a special classroom and play area for the children on the grounds of his sprawling estate in the fashionable Belgrano suburb.

"But when they started growing up, I had to separate them," Diligenti said in an interview. "I only allowed them to get together for birthdays."

The quints have visited together only rarely since college days.

Today, two of them—Franco Jr. and Maria Fernanda—live in Buenos Aires; Carlos is an engineering student in Vancouver, Canada; Maria Ester lives with an elder sister in Rome; and Maria Cristina is a resident of St. Paul, Minnesota, with her American husband, Dr. Bruce Zimmerman. She married last May.

Franco Jr. is an executive in one of the several textile plants his father owns here.

Franco Sr. described the boy as his latest headache. Franco Jr. dropped his studies of industrial engineering at Vancouver, Canada, early this year and returned here to get married, against his father's wishes.

"I wanted him to wind up his career before getting married," the father said.

He gave his son a job but he did not attend the boy's wedding here three months ago.

Another daughter, Maria Ester, divorced her Argentine husband, Carlos Vivares, three years ago and now lives with her three children in Rome.

Maria Fernanda, also the mother of three, lives here with her husband, Fernando Boero, an Argentine law student and public relations man.

Maria Cristina was studying to become an airline stewardess until she met and married Dr. Zimmerman. They were introduced by an elder Diligenti son, who is a friend of Zimmerman.

Carlos, studying at Vancouver, is the only unmarried quint.

Diligenti had one son from a first marriage. After his first wife died, he married Isabel Aversan, an Italian opera singer from Rome.

The couple settled here more than 30 years ago and Diligenti set up a small textile business which he developed into a successful industrial complex.

The Diligentis had two children, a son and a girl, before the quints came in 1943. They did not have any more children.

The Heat Helped

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sweltering Los Angeles basin residents can thank the heat for averting a smog alert. The temperature reached 92 Thursday and the heat joined a low pressure system to help break up a dense cover of smog.

Pygmies Teaching Survival

CLARK AIR BASE, Philippines (AP) — In wild terrain deep inside this U.S. base, dark-skinned Filipino pygmies are teaching Vietnam-bound pilots the art of staying alive in hostile jungle.

The school graduates about 200 American pilots every week.

At the heart of the survival course is a band of barefoot, loincloth-clad native instructors, members of a vanishing tribe of Negritos. The training site, off Mt. Pinatubo, is so rugged that helicopters are the only means of transportation.

The students are taught to erect shelter, to find water in the jungle, to start fire without matches, to differentiate between poisonous and edible plants and to avoid traps similar to the ones set by the Viet Cong.

The 30 Negrito instructors have been chosen for their ingenuity and thorough knowledge of the jungle.

"Give them a hammer and some nails and they can make anything in the world," says Capt. Roy Ryan, a pilot assigned to the school.

The tribesmen have a long history of cooperation with the U.S. Air Force. During the Japanese occupation they helped downed American pilots.

Their village stands just outside the fence which rings the 131,320 acres, much of it wilderness, that make up Clark Air Base.

Col. Philip C. Rawlins, base commander, says former trainees have written back that they would not be alive today if they hadn't taken the course here.

Vietnam Entertainment Groups to Get Escorts

By PETER ARNETT
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — "I get more trouble from amorous club managers than I do from the Viet Cong," said the blonde dancer, one of the hundreds of entertainers criss-crossing the jungles of Vietnam these days.

The pop singers, guitarists, semistrippers and fire eaters haven't been scared away by the ambush attack last weekend which killed two teen-age members of the Brandi Perry act from Los Angeles.

"We've hung 'Have Act—Will Travel Anywhere' signs back on our baggage," said one agent. "Any GI club that wants us can have us, providing the price is reasonably right."

There are about 500 such clubs in American military bases scattered across South Vietnam from the Mekong Delta to the demilitarized zone. The farther away from Saigon, the better the price, which can run as high as $425 an hour for a top pop group.

The Army's commercial entertainment coordinator in Saigon keeps a careful watch on the conduct of both the entertainers and the club operators that book them.

Some performers say the worst part of playing Vietnam is the hours of waiting at dusty airports for military planes that never arrive, the dirt and the crude conditions at many clubs, and the "thousand foot sponge" of Vietnamese government bureaucracy they bog down in when they try to extend their stay in the country or go to get exit visas.

But the risk of Viet Cong attack is real, particularly at night on lonely roads between bases when there is a temptation for an entertainment group to squeeze in just one more performance before a nearby club closes.

Brandi Perry and the Bubble Machine was ambushed after dark on the Saigon-Vung Tau road, a locale notorious for attacks and kidnaping. U.S. military sources also report a Filipina singer was killed in a Viet Cong ambush three weeks ago near Qui Nhon, a coastal resort.

The safety of visiting entertainers is their own responsibility. But because of the recent fatalities, U.S. military authorities called the 50 registered booking agents in Saigon together for a briefing on basic safety procedures.

The Army's Special Services Division ordered that all entertainment groups obtain road and security information from the local provost marshal before using a highway.

Would Like Kennedy For HHH Campaign

BOSTON (AP) — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey's son says he would like Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts as his father's running mate if Kennedy can best help the ticket.

Hubert H. Humphrey III, in Boston to organize young business and professional men to support his father's presidential campaign, told a news conference he is confident the vice president will win the Democratic nomination.

The selection of the vice presidential candidate also is up to the convention, he said, but added: "I would like to see the man who will best help the Democratic ticket, and if that man is Sen. Ted Kennedy, then that's the man I want."

After five hours of swimming action Columbia's swim club emerged the victor in the Mid-Missouri swim meet held in the Surf Club pool.

With close to 300 swimmers representing teams from Columbia, Marshall, Jefferson City and Sedalia, the local club swimmers were hard pressed to gain second place followed by Jefferson City and Marshall.

Outstanding performances by several of the Surf Club's Club's swimmers helped boost the team totals and insure their secondplace finish. Among these was Pat Curry who swam 100-meter freestyle in a swift 1:10.9 for the 13-14 yr. old age group and then came back to win the 100-meter backstroke and 50-meter freestyle.

Jo Ann Maxwell set a new pool record in the 50-meter freestyle and took firsts in the 100-meter freestyle and backstroke.

Diane Cordry set pool records in the 100-meter individual medley and 50-meter breastroke and a first in the 50-meter butterfly.

Other first place winners for the Surf Club were Kathy Dawson, 50-meter freestyle; Debbie Thompson, 50 meter-backstroke; Kent Cordry, 100-meter backstroke and 200 individual medley; Kristy Sanders, 1:38.4 in the 100-meter breastroke and then a repeat first in the 100-meter fly. Philip Dow grabbed the 100-meter butterfly for 13-14 boys. Sherry Sanders won first in the women's open 100-meter breastroke. Bill Raumaker first in the men's open 100-meter butterfly.

Next competition for the Surf Club will be at the Ward Parkway Country Club in Kansas City on July 20th.

Shelby To Return To Garnett

Carroll Shelby, Internationally famous race figure, will make a sentimental journey to the Lake Garrett Grand Prix, Garnett, Kan., this month.

Sehlby will serve as honorary Course Marshall for the two days of the National Championship SCCA (Sports Car Club of America) racing, to be held July 27-28.

Garnett is located on Highway 59, 20 miles south of Interstate 35.

In 1963 Shelby brought his Cobra team to the small Kansas community to enter the Lake Garnett Grand Prix. It was here that his ace drivers, headed by the late Ken Miles, proved their Le Mans-winning boss could build a winner as well as drive one. His crack team used the twisting 2.8 miles of natural road course to finish in one-two-three order.

Shelby teamed with English racer Roy Salvadori in 1959 to win the grueling Le Mans 24-hour race and set a new record for the course. The same year, he and co-driver Sterling Moss clinched the world championship for auto manufacturer Aston Martin.

From a superb racer to master auto designer, Shelby formed his own company, Shelby American, and based it in California. His ability was well-documented in 1965 when his Cobras captured the FIA International Manufacturers' Championship for grand touring cars. The Ford-powered GT's put an end to Italy's long reign with Ferrari. Shelby now divides his time between the United States and Europe, and Shelby-tended cars see action throughout the world.

Sport Scraps

By D. Kelly Scruton

There has been a lot of this and that and hysteria over gun control laws, drawing pro and con reaction over what our Congressmen and Senators should do. Personally, I can't see some of this legislation being proposed, on the surface there has been a lot to do over so little.

Of course nobody wanted to see or hear of President Kennedy or his brother Bobby being shot down by some lame brain. I would say if they had all the laws on the books, it would not have stopped these assassinations. Their minds had been brainwashed, most probably, or displayed a weakness of some sort to do such acts. Their determination was such they would and could have gotten guns without too much trouble.

A permit must be obtained to secure a hand weapon and such guns should be registered. But making a complete detailed registration of hunters' guns, trap shooters' guns, and other such guns, to me is 'way out' and could likewise create a problem more than it would do any good.

I have listened to sportsmen and those favoring legislation beating their gums in arguments, and I can't see that these people who are suffering from hysteria have a very strong point. Well can I remember the days of prohibition when the bootleggers had their days. The government tried to slow and pronibit the sale of liquor, but it was not too successful in this — though a lot of fellows were put in jail — and it still didn't stop.

Guns would also be bootlegged if strong laws are passed prohibiting anyone from getting one. They would be gotten regardless of laws.

As I was told Saturday, "Guns are no more dangerous than they were 50-75-100 previous years. But there was some control due to backing of law enforcement in those days whether it was a policeman or an 'old time' marshall.

"It's the law which has become too lenient as a result of rulings by the Supreme Court favoring the criminal — not the law enforcement agencies — which could rule favorably to the agencies to enforce the laws already on the books," he said.

Actually I don't believe these hysteria laws will get passed anyway.

To me it is rather interesting to see pictures and stories of those people who have "turned in" their guns. Actually it looks like that's the only way they can get recognition and publicity.

I know that there are many who disagree with what I have said, but I've said it as I see it.

Just another paragraph or two to pass on some remarks which have been told about registration of guns. As one man said, "remember how Hitler went into Poland, grabbing up all the guns that had been registered? When his SS troops called upon a man and asked for his gun and he denied it — he was shot."

Seems as the gentleman said Poland had such registration laws and Hitlers' gang went to the office of registration, grabbed up the lists and then made their calls on gun owners.

Now I am not alarmed over anyone taking over the United States and make the same seizure. The United States can take care of any situation like that. But it's something to think about.

Don't worry readers, there isn't anyone like Hitler going to have the nerve to try and grab' off these United States

Bold Hour Races To Victory

OCEANPORT, N.J. (AP) — Bold Hour, taking full advantage of a 15-pound pull in the weights, barrelled his way into the lead at the head of the stretch and won the $111,000 Amory L. Haskell Handicap at Monmouth Park Saturday as favored Damascus finished third.

Bold Hour, a 4-year-old son of Bold Ruler-Seven Thirty owned by George D. Widener and carrying 116 pounds hit the end of the 1¼ miles 1¼ lengths in front of Mrs. Peter Duchin's Mr. Right who packed 114.

Damascus, flying the silks of Mrs. Edith W. Bancroft under 131 pounds was only a neck away in third place as the 1967 champion failed in his bid to become the eight equine millionaire.

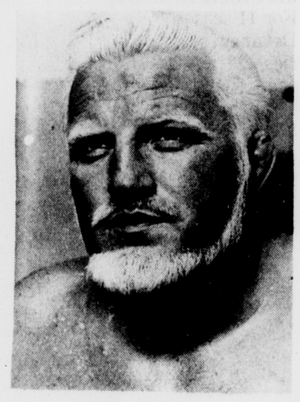

Bold Hour, who had split Dr. Fager and Damascus in the July 4 Suburban at Aqueduct, earned $72,150 for the 2:03 needed to complete the journey. Third place was worth $11,100 and inched Damascus toward the $1 million mark with earnings of $954,416.

As the second choice of the crowd of 28,849, Bold Hour paid $7.20, $4.40 and $2.60. Mr. Right, whose richest triumph came in the Santa Handicap last March, returned $11.60 and $3.60 in earning $22,200.

Ellis, Viking To Continue Battle

Bob Ellis

The Viking

The wrestling feud between Cowboy Bob Ellis and the Viking came to the boiling point last Tuesday night after Ellis was declared the winner by Referee Dick Moody.

Ellis endured a hard-hitting attack by the Viking following the decision.

That incident prompted Ellis to challenge the Norseman to a death match the next time they met. Instead, Matchmaker Gust Karras suggested a Texas rules battle and Ellis readily accepted.

That will be the case at Convention Hall as the highlight of a four-event program.

Karras explained that the match would be over the best of three falls, but that there would be no time limit, no disqualification. Another stipulation is that the referee will have to call his shots from outside the ring.

Thus the way is open for another bruising affair, with Ellis vengeance-bound. Only the stranglehold will be barred. "I'll be wrestling under familiar rules and will make the Viking wish he'd never stepped in against me," Ellis remakred.

To fill the date, Ellis has canceled an earlier commitment at Omaha. "I did it just to have the opportunity to get even with the Viking," he said.

Also set is a mixed team battle in which Ronnie Etchison will join Carmen Monge to oppose Natureboy Kirby and Kay Noble.

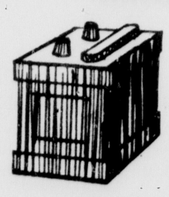

Other matches pit Thor Hagen and Handsome Herbert, Monge and Noble.

Donohue Races To Auto Championship

WATKINS GLEN, N.Y. (AP) — Mark Donohue averaged 117.97 miles an hour for 200.1 miles Saturday as he pushed his big Sunoco Special sports car to a record-speed victory in the United States Road Racing Championships. He finished 95 seconds ahead of a Simoniz Special driven by Chuck Parsons of Pebble Beach, Calif.

Donohue, of Media, Pa., drove the 87 laps over the 2.3-mile road circuit in one hour, 43 minutes, 41 seconds. He broke his own 1967 average speed record of 105.87 m.p.h. for the 200-mile race.

Player Wins British Open

CARNOUSTIE, Scotland (AP) — A spectacular eagle on the 14th hole by Gary Player broke the backs of America's top pros Saturday and carried the tough, little South African to his second British Open Golf Championship.

There was a mad scramble for the top, and it was anybody's title until Player hit a whistling three-wood four feet from the cup on the par 5 hole and knocked in the putt to move into a two-shot lead that he never lost.

"That did it—that did it," Player exulted afterward. "When I got that eagle I knew it was my championship."

Recovering magnificently from a variety of hazards on the finishing holes, the 32-year-old Player finished with a respectable one-over-par 73 for a total of 289.

Meanwhile, Bill Casper, leading by four strokes after 36 holes and by one after 54, ran into a rash of bogeys early and it remained for big Jack Nicklaus and New Zealand's Bob Charles to make the strongest challenge.

Nicklaus and Charles shared second money at 291, and Casper, taking a fat 6 on the closing hole, finished another stroke behind at 292.

The favored Nicklaus, paired with Player over the final round, matched his long time friend almost shot for shot through Carnoustie's blustery and bone-chilling winds for a matching 73. The left-handed Charles, scrambling, shot a 76 despite a birdie on the 17th hole.

Casper, his putter a slab of cold steel and his confidence shaken, came struggling in with a 78. He bogeyed four of the outgoing holes to turn in 40, hit his drive out of bounds on the 14th and then took a 6 on the finishing hole when he had a good chance at least to tie for second.

Maurice Bembridge, a virtually unknown English pro, made the best showing of the British with 293. Gay Brewer of Dallas, Tex., the 1967 U.S. Masters champion, bogeyed the last four holes in finishing with a 76 for 295.

Other American scores skyrocketed. The great Arnold Palmer limped home with a 77, his second of the tournament for a 297. Doug Sanders of Ojai, Calif., also had a 77 for 34. Hubby Habjan, the Chicago club pro, shot a 79 for 306 and Bert Yancey of Tallahassee, Fla., who led through the third round of the U.S. Open, slumped to an 84 for 311.

The popular defending champion, 45-year-old Robert de Vicenzo of Argentina, never got going. He finished with a 74 for 297, tied with Palmer.

Second British Open Trophy

Carnoustie, Scotland—Gary Player gets set to bestow a kiss on the British Open championship cup here Saturday after finishing his fourth round of play with a tourney-winning 72-hold total of 289. The South African golfer fought battering winds on the long Carnoustie course to win his first tournament in three years, beating out Bob Charles and Jack Niclaus by two strokes and Billy Casper by three. It was the second British Open tital for Player.

SHAVING STROKES

32---Hazards Of the Rain

Written for Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Bad weather has sunk more golfers because of their attitude than because of the actual inclement conditions. Some golfers feel they must battle rain and cold rather than adjust to the conditions.

You just can't play "sunshine-type" golf when rain is splattering your face and drenching the ball and grass or when your body is goose-pimply with cold. But many try.

The first rule for playing in the rain seems almost too obvious to mention: keep yourself and your equipment dry. If your clubs and grip are wet, you're finished.

Next, play the ball a little further forward, so it will have a tendency to "fly," as when playing out of the rough. Try to upswing or "pick" the ball off the grass. Don't hit down any more than you have to. This pick shot helps reduce slippage of the club face when meeting the wet ball.

When it rains, the air becomes denser than in better weather. This sometimes holds up the ball and cuts down on flying. Once you feel the ball is not flying, then go to more club.

The most important element in cold-weather playing is to keep warm. This may sound silly, but golfers often "underdress" because they feel that too many clothes will restrict their swing.

This may be true. But if you are cold, your swing won't be effective anyway. You won't have a free swing in any case, so make the best of the situation. Dress warm and swing within yourself.

From a mechanical standpoint, a good general rule is to use more club—because of the restricted swing—with a smoother and easier stroke.

No Boxing Ideas For Chamberlain

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A few years back Wilt Chamberlain announced he might switch from basketball to professional boxing.

"That's all over now," Chamberlain declared after announcing he had signed a five-year contract to play for the Los Angeles Lakers in the National Basketball Association.

But the 7-foot-plus Wilt earlier disclosed he has had an offer to play—you'd never guess—soccer.

"A man called me from New York the other day and said he might buy my contract from the Atlanta soccer team." Wilt chuckled.

"I didn't even know I 'belonged' to Atlanta's soccer club. The man asked would I be interested in a soccer contract. I told him, sure, I might be interested.

"He said I'd be a goalkeeper. They could teach me how to play."

The Chamberlain formal signing was a typical Jack Kent Cooke production. He owns the Lakers, the Forum and now a large part of Wilt.

Cooke held the news conference in the 18,000-seat Forum itself and scores of Cooke employes deserted desks to see the great ones in action.

Earlier Chamberlain, with a big smile said:

"What a sensational thing it would be if I suddenly announced I hadn't signed with the Lakers."

Chamberlain made it clear he was happy to join the Lakers and live in Los Angeles. He said he has extensive real estate and other business properties in this area. He said he asked for the five-year pact "because I want to end my career in Los Angeles."

"I'm happy to play with the most exciting forward in basketball, Elgin Baylor, and with another great player, Jerry West," Wilt said at one point.

How does he view the Lakers' championship prospects?

"We all know Boston has been the dominating team in the NBA the past decade. I always felt the Lakers had the same type of team as the Celtics but needed more firepower at center," he answered.

Chamberlain, of course, is expected to supply this firepower.

William Jennings Bryan, in 1896, at the age of 36, was the youngest candidate ever nominated for the U.S. presidency.

Teenagers Win Henley Regatta

HENLEY-ON-THAMES, England (AP) — A group of Virginia teen-agers, who earned the $3,000 to buy their shell and then raised an additional $10,000 to compete in the Royal Henley Regatta, won the Princess Elizabeth Cup Saturday.

The Elizabeth Cup is equivalent to the world championship for schoolboys and the eight representing the J.E.B. Stuart High School of Falls Church, Va., already the national champions of the United States, won under adverse weather conditions by a shrinking six feet from Eton College.

The Americans almost capsized afterwards when they began celebrating their victory before getting ashore and their shell rammed into the booms marking the finish.

Their time was 8 minutes, 17 seconds for the 1-mile, 550-yard flood- swollen course. Weather conditions were atrocious, yet more than 20,000 spectators lined the river banks.

While the Virginia high schoolers triumphed, the Cornell University lightweights were beaten in the Thames Cup competition by the Leander Club of England by four lengths in 8:08.

The New York Collegians, the defending champions and the victors over the Irish Police eight of Dublin in the morning semifinal.

In the final, Cornell drew the right land and had to row straight into the heavy flood current and also into a strong wind.

Reds Will Hold Camp In St. Joe

A special two-day tryout camp for baseball players 16 and over will be conducted by the Cincinnati Reds July 18-19 at St. Joseph.

Reds Scouting Supervisor Chet Montgomery will oversee the five-hour tryout which is scheduled from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at City Stadium.

Montgomery will be assisted by scouts Dolar Rehm and Tony Poloski.

All eligible players are requested to furnish their own personal gear — shoes, uniforms and gloves. The Reds will provide bats and baseballs.

In addition, players will be responsible for traveling and living expense, if any, unless they are signed to contracts with Cincinnati Reds organization teams.

Players must be 16 years old to be eligible and all American Legion players must have written approval from their legion coaches or post commanders if attendance at the tryout is in direct conflict with American Legion activities.

Players attending high schools still in session will be permitted to participate only upon presentation of written permission from the principal of the high school they attend.

Players, Owners To Resume Strike Talks

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Negotiating committees for National Football League teams and their players prepared Saturday for resumption of talks that could break the bargaining stalemate that has threatened the 1968 season.

The two sides will meet in New York Sunday starting at 3 p.m. It will be their first confrontation since they broke off talks last weekend in Detroit.

Since that time, the owners have agreed to bar all veteran players from training camps and have vowed to play the season with rookies and free agents if necessary. Players of some teams, meanwhile, have set up their own conditioning camps.

Agreement on the pension plan is all that stands between the players and owners and the start of training camps.

The players reportedly want the owners to contribute $100,000 each to the plan while the owners have offered a 25 per cent increase in contributions this year and a 50 per cent boost next year.

Most Successful Grid Coaches From Midwest

By BOB HOOBING
Written for The Associated Press

The Midwest, not the South, has spawned the most successful major college football coaches. Just look at No. 1-Nebraska's Bob Devaney.

Leading the Cornhuskers' resurgence and remaining his profession's only active .800 winner, Devaney played end at little Alma College in Michigan. For 11 seasons of coaching, the Devaney record lists 88 victories, 22 losses, 5 ties and an even .800 percentage.

In the age-old sectional supremacy struggle, it is worth noting that 10 of the top 26 coaches of the day attended Midwest schools compared to eight in the South.

Even more amazing, six of them matriculated in the state of Ohio.

Nevertheless it is Mississippi's John Vaught who bests Alabama's Paul "Bear" Bryant by .001 point-.773 to .772-for runnerup position. Vaught was an All-American guard at Texas Christian. Bryant played end opposite Don Hutson at 'Bama.

The ratings are based on men who have directed varsity squads for 10 or more seasons.

Fourth spot is held by Dan Devine of Missouri, who attended the University of Minnesota Duluth Branch.

In 13 seasons Devine has won 97, lost 30, and tied 8 for a .764 percentage.

Devaney and Devine have amazingly parallel careers. Both captained small Midwest college teams, sharpened their teaching skills in Michigan high school ranks, worked under Biggie Munn and Duffy Daughgerty and Michigan State and wound up in the same conference-the Big Eight.

While fifth place Bob Blackman of Dartmouth, went to Southern California, Arizona State's Frank Kush was a headline guard at Michigan State and Woody Hayes of Ohio State, was a lineman at Denison in Granville, Ohio.

Miami of Ohio, self-styles cradle of coaches, has turned out three of the current leaders in Ara Parseghian of Notre Dame, John Pont of Indiana and South Carolina's Paul Dietzel.

That trip-plus Hayes, Purdue's Jack Mollenkopf Bowling Green and Ohio University's Bill Hess Ohio U. - comprise the Buckeye state delegation.

Lloyd Eaton, who has had Wyoming on a 20-2 binge the past two seasons, joined the Cowboys in 1957 after coaching at Northern Michigan College. He attended Black Hills S.D. State.

Despite Vaught's hairline decision over Bryant in the percentage column, the Bear's Alabama teams have whipped Ole Miss four times in as many tries. Including his earlier sting at Kentucky, Bryant has a 6-4-1 edge on Vaught.

The elder statesman of the group however, is New Mexico State's Warren Woodson who has put 37 campaigns behind him with a 239-110-20 mark to show for it.

Because their teams now have held major college rating for a sufficient period of time, Pie Vann of Southern Mississippi and Bill Murphy of Memphis State are new additions to the listing.

Murphy, whose school is a new member of the Missouri Valley Conference, has a record of 3 victories, 28 losses, one tie for

Springfield Open Golf Tourney Set

Plans are shaping up rapidly for the newest addition to major sports events in the area, the first annual Springfield Amateur Open Golf Tournament. The 18-hole event will be played over the Grandview Municipal Golf Course this Saturday, July 20th.

It is being sponsored by the Springfield Area Chapter of the Fellowship of Chrsitain Athletes, of which Aldo Sebben, Director of Athletics at Southwdst Missouri State College, is chairman. General chairman of the tournament is Orville Pottenger, director of athletics, Springfield Public Schools.

Proceeds of the tournament will be used to send high school and college athletes to a summer conference of the FCA in Colorado next month.

Merchandise prizes totaling $11,200 will be awarded. Contributions in merchandise and cash are still being received at the Empire Bank by Prize Committee Co-Chairmen Bob Vanatta and Jerry Lumpe. Trophies and major prizes worth approximately $100 will go to winners of flights (championship and A, B, C, D, and E.) There will be at least eight prizes per flight.

Assignments to all flights are to be determined by scores and number of entries. This modifies earlier plans which provided for players in the championship flight to declare their intention of competing in that flight upon entering.

Entries are being received at an accelerated pace, with players now lined up to come from Kansas City and St. Louis as well as from southwest Missouri. Entry fees of $10, with checks to be made out to "Springfield FCA Golf Tournament" will continue to be received by Larry Clark, pro at the Grandview Course RFD 10, Springfield, Mo. 65803.

For advance pairings and starting time assignments, entries are requested by Wednesday, July 17th. However, contestants may sign up as late as Saturday, so long as they can be scheduled to tee off by 1 p.m.

The tournament is attracting wide attention from golfers and athletes in general. Bill Thomas, head basektball coach at SMS, will lead a foursome of college basektball coaches. Bob Lechner, Glendale High School football coach, has another coaches' foursome set. Jerry Lumpe, the veteran major league infielder, is forming a group of former baseball players.

MURIEL LAWRENCE

Experience of Humiliation Is Bad Deal All Around

By MURIEL LAWRENCE

DEAR MRS. LAWRENCE: Two years ago our 17-year-old girl got herself pregnant and both she and the boy insisted on marriage. It has been a most dismal failure. She now knows that her father was right when he told her to behave herself on dates with irresponsible boys. In God's name, Mrs. Lawrence, what is wrong with our present-day method of raising our children? We want your opinion even though it comes too late to help us. . . .

ANSWER: It is my view that it is a very simple "wrong." And that "wrong" is that no parents in the history of the human community have been so abandoned by their society as we are by this one.

Even the primitive savages we sneer at as "uncivilized" people had the wit to know the parental influence over kids ends with the onset of puberty. They knew that teen-age trust of us MUST end if the kid is to develop trust of himself. And so savage tribes made merciful arrangements to provide adolescents with more aceptable, nonparent tutelage by tribal elders, sage in tribal lore, in social realities and survival methods. Indeed, every society I ever heard of has arranged for this nonparent instruction of pubescent kids in order to prepare them for responsible contribution to their communities. Historically, the respected tribal elder has incarnated himself in many shapes from the scholars of Britain's boarding-schools to the master journeyman of Europe's Middle Ages. But whatever his shape, the nonparent tutor has always been provided at the moment when parental guidance must come into question and doubt.

Only in this society no such tutelage exists. Nor do we question its absence.

For we are now so accustomed to blame that we grab all blame whenever our un-leadered pubescents come a cropper. As you yourself say, "What did we do wrong?" So anxious are we to kick ourselves in the teeth that it never occurs to us to think, "Am I wholly to blame for my girl's bad marital judgment—or have I been required to perform the impossible?"

So our kids learn, not through transitional instruction by tribal wise men but through "experience"—experience of humiliation. As is said by the idealists of New York City's Teachers College, they "learn by doing." And what such "learning" costs, I do not have to estimate for you.

Shot With Bobby, Victim Improved

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A labor official wounded in the burst of gunfire that killed Sen. Robert F. Kennedy has shown steady improvement, hospital officials say.

Paul Schrade, Western regional director of the United Auto Workers, was with the Kennedy party at a primary victory celebration June 5 at the Ambassador Hotel and was hit in the head by a bullet.

Surgeons at Kaiser Foundation Hospital said Schrade may require additional surgery to put a metal plate over a hole in the skull made by the bullet.

Three other persons also wounded with Schrade have recovered.

Tax Evasion Fines Levied

WICHITA (AP) — Fines of $6,000 apiece were assessed Friday against Jack Speer Sr., 53, of Kansas City, Mo., and Royce O. Sehnert, 71, of Wichita, who had pleaded no contest to charges of income tax violations. The two were former employes of the Wichita Eagle and Beacon Publishing Co.

U.S. District Court Judge Wesley E. Brown sentenced the two to three years in prison and fined them $1,000 on each of six counts of income tax evasion and filing false tax returns. He granted the defendants' requests for probation and made it for a five-year period.

A grand jury returned an indictment against Speer and Sehnert Dec. 9, 1965 in Kansas City, Kan. The two pleaded not guilty but later changed the pleas to nolo contendere.

They had been charged with three counts of tax evasion and three counts of filing false returns for the years 1959 through 1961.

The Swan Islands were named for a 17th-century pirate who made his headquarters there.

Still Searching for Mascot

CARBONDALE, Ill. (AP) — They're still looking for their mascot at Southern Illinois University.

Two months ago, Sarra, a Saluki dog, jumped from a convertible on her way to the spring festival. In a chase, the lean and graceful hound, an ancient Egyptian breed, outdistanced the convertible.

A local veterinarian said Sarra could exist "almost indefinitely" in the country because of her stamina and hunting prowess. Sarra, who arrived on the campus in February, has been seen twice in Carbondale since she skipped out on the festival.

But the university still has four other Salukis at its kennels. One, Yembo, is a sister of Sarra.

Mrs. Ronald Custer

Sharon Yontz, Ronald Custer Exchange Double Ring Vows

Miss Sharon Lynnette Yontz and Mr. Ronald Eugene Custer, Tipton, were united in a nuptial Mass Saturday afternoon at St. Andrew's Catholic Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Yontz, Tipton, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl E. Custer of Kansas City.

The Rev. Donald Wallace, Jefferson City and the Rev. Vincent Linnebur, Nasa, Peru, officiated at the double ring ceremony. The Rev. Herbert Kramer, pastor, served as moderator.

Mr. Robert Carter, organist, played appropriate selections and Mr. Patrick Healey, soloist, sang "An American Wedding Program" and "O God I will Praise Thee."

The main altar was banked with arrangements of gladiolus and pompoms. Similar arrangements adorned the side altars. Two white Grecian columns topped by seven cathedral candles, white gladiolus and pompoms at either side of the communion rail.

The bride escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her father, chose a floor length skimmer gown of white silk linen fashioned with scoop neckline and bell sleeves, accented with Venice lace. The A-line skirt and detachable pointed train were edged in matching lace. Her illusion veil draped from a double bow of white silk linen trimmed with small Venice lace motifs. She carried a cascade of gardenias and yellow rosebuds with ivy foliage.

Lynn Luebbert, maid of honor and Miss Carolyn Yontz, cousin of the bride, Miss Pat Quilan, Kansas City and Miss Jennifer Custer, sister of the groom, Kansas City, bridesmaids, wore matching floor length skimmer gowns of maize silk linen styled with cowl neckline and short sleeves. Aqua daisies formed headpieces and they carried bouquets of matching daisies with cascading ivy and ribbon. Miss Mary Grace Linnebur, cousin of the bride, Kansas City, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Linnebur, was the flower girl.

Mr. Thomas Cordes Jr., Dixon, served as best man. Groomsmen were Mr. Ron Richardson, Jefferson City; Mr. Terry Vache, Boonville and Mr. Gary Custer, brother of the groom, Kansas City.

Performing ushering duties were: Mr. Frank Yontz, cousin of the bride; Mr. Bob Kohen and Mr. Larry Matthews, Jefferson City.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at the Tipton Country Club, with Mrs. B. A. Hainen and Mrs. Wilbur Knipp in charge. Miss Deborah Boulware, cousin of the bride, Overland Park, Kans. presided at the guest book with Mrs. Lynn Houchin, Mrs. James Vieth, Mrs. James Steen, Mrs. Robert Fennewald, Miss Arlene Bish, all of Jefferson City, and Mrs. Frank Haar, Kansas City, serving. Generally assisting were: Misses Suzanne and Kathy Yontz, Misses Angela and Gloria Linnebur and Joyce Boulware, cousins of the bride, all of Kansas City.

A six o'clock dinner at the Tipton Farmers' & Sportsmans' Club was held for relatives and out of town guests.

Following the honeymoon Mr. and Mrs. Custer will live in Jefferson City where the groom is Senior High School coach and the bride holds employment with the Missouri Division of Employment Security.

Mrs. L. W. Linnebur and Mrs. Pat Quinlan entertained 30 guests with a shower honoring Miss Yontz at Mrs. Linnebur's home in Kansas City Sunday, June 2.

On Monday night, June 3 the bride-to-be was showered at the home of Mrs. James Vieth in Jefferson City. Mrs. James Steen was co-hostess, 20 guests were present.

Miss Yontz was feted with a shower given by Mrs. George Houcin, Jefferson City at her home June 5. Guests were members of the Epsilon Sigma Alpha Sorority.

On Friday evening the groom's parents were hosts to a rehearsal dinner at Oscar's in Jefferson City for the bridal party, immediate family members, the Rev. Father Linnebur and the Rev. Father Wallace.

Show an Interest In Credit Rates

By AILEEN SNODDY
NEA Consumer Affairs Specialist

Despite truth-in-lending legislation that will give buyers a clearer picture of how much they'll pay in interest and for other financing charges on loans and credit purchases, the individual still must do his own figuring. It won't be until sometime in 1969 when federal legislation could be effective in protecting the consumer from excessive interest charges or uncover ones currently hidden.

The push for the bill already has inspired some major retailers and mail-order houses to explain charges to their customers.

Meanwhile, a buyer needs to keep his pencil hand when shopping for a credit source, for example. A few minutes with one's revolving charge account also may suggest a new approach to take when charging for family food, clothing and home furnishings.

For the most part a person can find the true annual interest cost through simple multiplication. Once you do, you can see what is reasonable and what is too expensive.

For example, if you want to compare costs, compare two loans or installment purchases of the same amount, same length of time and same method of repayment. Otherwise it's like comparing apples and oranges.

To determine the true annual interest rate, multiply the monthly rate by 12. A loan company charging 2½ per cent a month is really getting 30 per cent interest.

Loans based on so many dollars per hundred carry a true annual interest rate that is double the listed charge. A stated rate of $4.50 per $100 or 4½ per cent is approximately 9 per cent true annual interest.

To find your dollar cost for an installment purchase, add up all payments, including the down payment and service charges. Subtract the actual price. For an installment loan, subtract the cash you get from the total of all the payments you are to make.

One way to save on department store charge accounts is to use them for less expensive items and keep down the monthly balance because department stores generally charge 1½ per cent of each month's balance after the due date. If you plan to buy something expensive like a color TV, fur coat, boat or even a set of golf clubs you'll save on interest by borrowing from a commercial bank and paying the store or dealer in cash.

STRAY HAIRS ARE PROBLEM

No matter how attractive a hair style is, its beauty can be lessened by stray hairs at the nape of the neck. This is a special problem when setting shorter cuts and can be avoided by checking the back of your set in a three-way mirror. If you discover stray hairs use a comb to shape them into a miniature wave or smooth them into place and tape them using Dermicel tape. In addition it won't hurt coming off.

Extensive process

The production of attar of roses is an extensive process. About 340 roses are required to supply a pound of petals and these thousands of petals only make about two drops of the attar.

TRY BABY POWDER

If you are a Miss Shiny Nose who has to repowder all during the day, try baby powder. Its superabsorbency banishes the excess oil of your skin for hours.

Homemakers meet On Campus of MU

Area delegates included: Mrs. Raymond Wasson, LaMonte; Mrs. Erwin Apprill, and Mrs. Reinhardt J. Reikhof, Higginsville; Mrs. Marion Baldwin, Warrensburg; Mrs. Vincil Ihrig, Warsaw; Mrs. Roxie R. York, Clinton; Mrs. Dorothy N. Hughes, California; Mrs. Loy Allee, Tipton; and Mrs. Vincent R. Staudenraus, Versailles.

INEXPENSIVE LUXURY

Luxury doesn't have to cost a small fortune. For a scented after-bath rubdown, simply add a small amount of your favorite perfume to a bottle of baby oil and shake well. Right after your bath, while your skin is still warm and pores are still open, smooth the perfumed oil lightly all over your body. Let your skin absorb the oil for a few minutes, then towel off excess.

Grocer Group Holds Picnic

The Independent Retail Grocers Association held its annual picnic July 11, at the Parkhurst Tiki House with a large number of grocers, their families, food suppliers and guests attending.

The smorgasbord dinner was served at 7 p.m., after which Glenn Lewis, president, welcomed all and introduced Rep. Joe Rains, chairman of the picnic, who expressed appreciation to the Parkhurst family and introduced Mr. and Mrs. David Parkhurst.

Lewis then presented the entertainment of the evening, a brand new teenage band, "The Infinity-" which provided modern music. The youthful band is composed of Robbie Owen, soloist for most of the numbers, who also played the guitar; Charles Stanley, who played the guitar and sang a solo; Jim Bottcher, guitar, and Rich Embree, drummer.

Former Governor Signs a Petition

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Signatures on petitions asking recall election for Republican Gov. Ronald Reagan include one by the governor he ousted —Edmund G. Brown.

Brown, a Democrat, acknowledged Wednesday that he signed the petitions and inadvertently did so illegally. The California constitution says petition signers must reside in the county where they sign. Brown, now a Los Angeles lawyer, said he signed in Sacramento.

If he gets the chance, Brown said, he will sign again.

"If for no other reason, Reagan should be recalled for the way he's traveling around the country raising money for his own political purposes," he said.

Nurses Take Job Too Seriously

PENDLETON, Ore. (AP) — The Pendleton Community Hospital has closed its maternity ward because two married nurses are pregnant and three others are quitting for other reasons.

Al Cobbin, the hospital administrator, said the vacancies left the hospital without enough nurses to operate the ward.

There is one other hospital in the eastern Oregon community.

Youth Mixed With Indoctrination Spells Birth of a New 'Charlie'

By HUGH MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent

SAIGON (AP) — Two weeks before the Tet offensive brought the thunder and horror of war to the cities of South Vietnam, a young man named Ha and his 18-year-old sister Khoanh were recruited into the Viet Cong by a Chinese lady agent.

They received their first orders at a midnight rendezvous with three V.C. agents on Lo Sieu Street in Cholon, Saigon's Chinese district, on Jan. 28, the eve of Tet, the lunar New Year. Along with a dozen others, they were given red arm bands and baskets of tissue-thin rice paper leaflets calling for a "tong khoi" general uprising of the masses.

The leaflets were to be distributed down one side of a busy Cholon street then getting ready for the ritual mayhem of firecrackers and dragon parades that annually ushers in the new year in Asia.

Two nights later, the pop-pop of Chinese firecrackers turned out to be automatic rifles, and marching columns of Viet Cong soldiers, instead of dragon dancers, heralded the new year.

Ha, the brother, did so well at handing out leaflets he was immediately promoted to armed propaganda agent who made speeches to the Cholon street crowds with a battery-operated megaphone. Ha's orders were to shoot it out rather than submit to arrest.

"Now is the time of opportunity", the propaganda officer cried nightly, as Ha stood in a nearby doorway with the pistol ready under his loose sports shirt. "It is obvious that the Americans and their puppets are being defeated and the revolution will win total victory. The bugle call of the fatherland ordering the assault has sounded over mountain and river."

Ha heard the same speech six nights in a row. Then on the seventh morning, as the tide of the battle of Saigon began to turn, he was picked up by the National Police at his home, without electing to shoot it out.

At about the same time that Ha and his sister put on their red armbands, Lt. Nguyen Huu Thu, a North Vietanmese artillery observer assigned to the 9th V.C. Division in Tay Ninh Province, near the Cambodian border, received orders to move on Saigon.

The march was over rough terrain, mainly at night. Only dry rations were authorized for the trek. No smoking. No fires. Before setting out, Thu and his men underwent six days of intensive indoctrination urging them on to "achieve the final victory with the enthusiasm of Dien Bien Phu." Along the trail, no matter how rough the going, the unit never missed its two-hour "through guidance" session.

"This march," artilleryman Thu wrote in his notebook, "will be the greatest march in the history of war against the Americans by the Liberation Army of the Eastern Nambo Region." It was his final entry. He and several of his comrades fell victim to an air strike two days away from the promised glories in Saigon.

Thu's notebook and the leaflets distributed by Ha and his sister are among the hundreds of documents, diaries, notebooks, party reports, battle plans, etc. that have fallen—and continue to fall—into Allied hands.

Munition Makers

In making do with available material, the North Vietnamese will find use for most used equipment. These shells and shell casings, together with items scrounged from the field of battle, are worked on by soldiers to aid them in combat. This photo was captured near Saigon.

Sometimes it is easy to downgrade the Viet Cong propaganda efforts. But one thing emerges clearly: No matter how clumsy the propaganda is in depicting the American soldier and his allies and their purposes in Vietnam, the guerrilla fighter believes it.

This may be the most frightening weapon in the Viet Cong soldier's hands and may explain as much as anything his willingness to keep on fighting.

The captured documents show that the Viet Cong, for all his initiative and daring, is at heart an organizational man, a paper-work tiger constantly penned up by reports, directives, criticisms, exhortations, party circulars, poems by Uncle Ho, propaganda spiels masquerading as Buddhist tracts and other trailside reading matter turned out in endless proliferation by jungle mimeographs lugged over the mountains of Laos or party printing presses cranking away in the back alleys of Cholon.

Those who wonder how the Viet Cong could mount the Tet offensive and the more recent rocket attacks on Saigon against the might of the American military committment and after more than three years of constant bombing of the supply routes tend to underestimate what a vast and effective political-military structure the Viet Cong is. Douglas Pike, in his major study of the Viet Cong, estimated that the National Liberation Front expends more time, money and manpower on organizational activities than on everything else combined.

To the Viet Cong, war means more than meeting the enemy on the battlefield. It means confusing him, demoralizing him, fragmenting his strength, discrediting him at home and in world opinion, crushing his will to prevail with systematic terror; then, when the government is defeated or subverted, moving into the power vacuum with superb organization ability and management skills to organize the people at every level: economic, social, cultural, military.

There were goals and norms and timetables for everyone.

1. For Farmers:

"Be ready to assume the missions of a guerrilla force . . ."

"Motivate all farmers to eat vegetables and porridge and limit all unnecessary expenses to have rice and food supplies to contribute to the revolution . . ."

2. For Women:

"Mobilize women to join village and hamlet guerrilla forces. By the end of December 1967, female guerrillas should account for 50 per cent or more of the guerrilla strength in the lowlands and 12 per cent in the mountains . . ."

"Organize a propaganda assault team consisting of three to five female members to carry out propaganda tasks at large market places . . . and whisper the news of great victories at such places as bicycle repair shops . . ."

3. For Children:

"Three or four determined-to-die cells—suicide squads, "quyet tu" in Vietnamese—made up of selected male and female youth should be activated in each village."

For the Viet Cong soldier ordered to move on Saigon for the Tet offensive, final preparations included more than just going to the quartermaster and drawing the special trail equipment: two khaki uniforms, rifle, one canteen, a spoon, a dish, eight meters of nylon to serve as both tent and raincoat, a dagger, one pair of rubberized sandals, 60 water purifying tablets, 30 malaria pills, three kilos (about seven pounds) of rice, a helmet, a mosquito net and long stockings for protection against leeches.

There were indoctrination classes to attend, morale rallies, notebooks to be filled, slogans to be learned.

Life in a Viet Cong unit, where the party secretary outranks the military commander, is a constant cacaphony of slogans and criticisms, awards and "emulations."

But from the fighting spirit of the Viet Cong it appears that these efforts work.

To mute the music of the government's chieu hoi—open arms—program, which last year lured 27,000 defectors from the Communist fold, the cadres revved up the "thought guidance" program again the continuing effort of indoctrination.

Cadre and fighters were warned against listening to enemy radio broadcasts, picking up propaganda leaflets and "receiving gifts and cash from relatives who may be enemy henchmen."

Besides the motivation from without, there is constant motivation from within. One of the great strengths of the Viet Cong is its ability, through praise and promotion, to motivate men to herculean feats under the most depressing conditions.

There is steady movement up through the ranks, so that a guerrilla enlisted only a few days ago, like Ha and his sister, can rise under the "emulation program" from class C recruit ("one of the masses") to youth member to group member to outstanding party member to outstanding emulator, which means he is one to be admired and imitated by one and all.

He can achieve all this without gaining an extra stripe or improving his base pay, for a buck private, of 460 piastres (about $4) a month. But he has the satisfaction of knowing that in a people's army the awards are voted by his comrades.

To whip up enthusiam in the countryside, the emulation movements coins the title of "glorious family" for those who go out of their way to feed and support Saigon-bound units. Farmers who agree to transport 200 angs (an ang equals about 5 pounds) of rice to a secret supply drop are accorded the title of "outstanding soldier." Those who carry 400 angs are upgraded to "outstanding emulator."

A guerrilla youth who shoots down a helicopter is elevated to the rank of "peace loving, American-killing emulator," which in party jargon is about as far as any Viet Cong can go.

With the title goes a month's leave, a watch, a ballpoint pen and a bicycle.

Despite the best laid propaganda and indoctrination plans of the political cadre, there are failures.

"They are enthusiastic in shouting slogans such as 'shoot enemy aircraft from the sky, attack the enemy on all corners of the earth," laments one coiner of V.C. slogans "but when comes the time to put these slogans into practice, they do their job carelessly.

"For instance, they have fired at enemy aircraft from unprotected positions, sometimes standing in water. Thus when the enemy returned the fire, many of our comrades were hit. Once they fired at aircraft from the people's houses, and when the enemy retaliated, the people's houses were burned down and their water buffaloes killed. This caused a bad feeling among the population."

The blizzard of captured leaflets shows that in propaganda aimed at the enemy, the Viet Cong has not abandoned hope of presuading South Vietnamese government troops to lay down their arms and join the uprising.

Special attention is also given to trying to get South Korean, Royal Thai and Philippine troops to defect, but relatively little hope is held out for the Australians and New Zealanders.

Psychological warfare teams are urged to learn English and obtain jobs at American bases to "motivate U.S. Negro and young troops to contact us and surrender or accept work as agents for us."

But, as a directive for Military and Enemy Proselyting Section of Viet Cong Region No. 5 concedes, the results have been highly disappointing: "A great majority of the American troops have not yet understood our struggle to save our people's righteous cause."

One reason for failure, especially among Negro troops, is the inept and at times ludicrous tone of the propaganda, as when a leaflet devised for "black American servicemen" refers to the Civil War as "the American people's 1863 revolution."

If the Viet Cong's strength is in the countryside, its special genius is its mastery of the tiniest details of village and hamlet life. As the break out time for the Tet offensive loomed on the lunar calendar, the village blacksmith shop became important:

"District units must reorganize blacksmith shops," urged an 18-page "absolute secret" order captured in Binh Dinh province. "They must develop these shops into machine shops to improve the production of modified bombs and mines and manufacture grenades and shaped charges. . . The people should be motivated to go and seek out dud bombs, mines, and ammunition and modify them against the enemy."

Yet under pressure of constant war, the obvious virtues of Viet Cong bureaucracy are not always enough to keep the gears meshing, especially at local level. As more and more troops are infiltrated from the north, so that now they are estimated at 40 to 60 per cent of the 110,000 Viet Cong main force strength, friction increases between local committees and infiltrating cadres, between southerns and northeners.

And despite all the training and indoctrination, Viet Cong punishment rosters confirm weakness of the guerrilla fighters:

"There were 20 cases of punishment. Many idled their time away, used inconsiderate language, disobeyed cadre's orders . . . leaked out secret information with their show - off habits. . ."

"Some deserters were shot when they ran into retreating elements. . ."

"Soldiers do not respect public property and often use it wastefully."

"Pacifistic attitudes, fear of a protracted war and hardships are still noted. . ."

"Our men like to read enemy leaflets, newspapers and magazines, and listen to enemy broadcasts. . ."

"Some betrayed us and surrendered to the enemy. Others demonstrated dishonesty in stealing the people's property. The people have lost their confidence in the troops. . ."

"A small number of our comrades did not believe in the success of our general offensive. . . They were skeptical. They made ironic remarks that the Americans would bring in more troops and broaden the war. Some comrades said, 'we won't last until final victory. . .'"

Even now, several months after Tet, it is not known whether Hanoi really expected a mass uprising against the Saigon government or just used that line to spur on the attackers. There is no doubt, however, that many of the invaders expected the people to come flocking to the Viet Cong banner and were confused and astonished when didn't:

"We failed to bring forth an uprising of the masses. The failure adversely affected other aspects of our plans. . ."

Still, a political officer's notebook captured in April by the U.S. 25th Division shows that Hanoi feels it may have got what it wanted, and more, from the bold thrust at Saigon and the cities:

"This was a heavy political setback for the Americans and puppets. The world and people at home clearly saw that Americans and puppets were not able to defend their cities . . . If the recent general uprising had not taken place, President Johnson would not have withdrawn his presidential candidacy . . . and the black Americans would not have resorted to violence against white Americans."

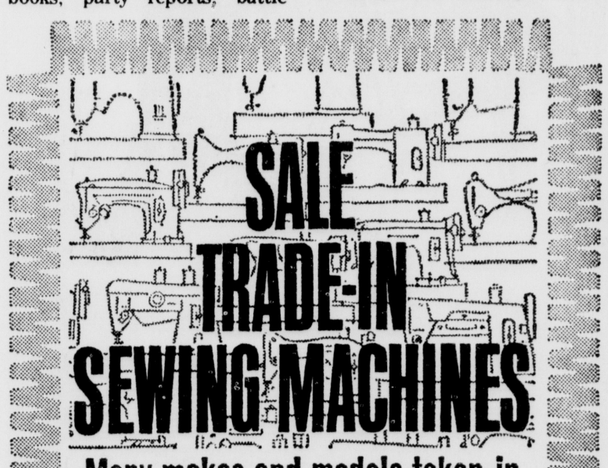

Revealing as the documents are, the Communist tendency to rationalize all defeats as ideological shortcomings gives an eerily unreal quality to most of the battle reports.

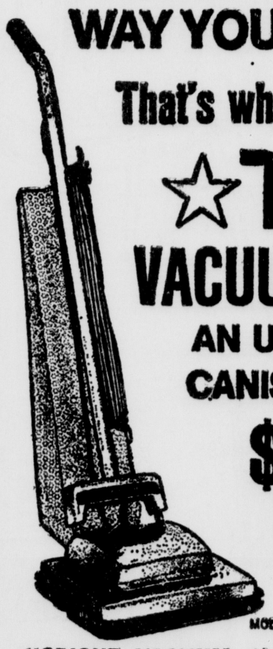

When air strikes and artillery erode the psycho-political structure of a V.C. unit, it is the party secretary who complains of "inadequate subjective discipline" and the battalion commander who complains "our objectives were impossible, our food is running out, there are no manpower resources to bury our dead, we lack the strength for continued combat."

In the delicately organized, emotionally super-charged world of the V.C., where every man is allocated a coffin and shroud on the day he enlists, it is difficult to say which is the real reality.

Farm Ponds Go Over Big in County

Under Construction

In a few years this will be a good fishing spot. The new pond is being constructed on West 16th Street Road for use of residents of the Walnut Hills Country Club area and their guests. (Democrat-Capital Photos).

Watershed

The watershed on this pond on the E.E. Stevenson farm south of Smithton is well-covered and keeps eroding soil from washing into the pond. The fence keeps cattle out of the pond. Provisions for a watering trough are below the dam.

By RALPH JONES
Democrat-Capital Staff Writer

Five minutes to fishing is only a dream to city dwellers, but not to Pettis Countians and other Central Missourians.

According to estimates, there are some 1,500 farm ponds in Pettis County alone that have been stocked with 'fry' by the Missouri Conservation Commission.

With this many farm ponds available, and with most farmers eager to allow fishing on one or two of their ponds, "close-in" fishing is not too much of a problem. All the pond owners require, in most instances, is that the angler contact the owner in the first place, then conform with the owner's wish as to closing gates, walking across fields and taking too many of certain species of fish from the pond.

Changes are the owner had the pond built under an available Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service program whereby the ASCS furnished half of the money. Then it was stocked by the Conservation Commission, which encourages heavy fishing to maintain the balance of certain types of fish on the pond.

In Pettis County last year the ASCS office helped build 12 ponds, which has been the average for the past few years. ASCS people staked out 23 other ponds, which did not come under ASCS specifications for assistance, but were built by the owner, then stocked by the state.

Farm ponds are built for two purposes — for stock watering and for recreational purposes, and serve both well, if the pond is properly managed.

Several publications on the technical aspects of construction and management of farm ponds are available, and expert assistance is available without cost, from the Agricultural Extension Service, the ASCS office and the Conservation Department. In the past few months the conservation magazine, "Missouri Conservationist," available to Missourians without cost, has featured a series of articles on farm ponds.

The average fisherman would like to land a lunker bass, but after he lands a few of the battling bluebill in a well-managed pond he soon becomes a confirmed bluegill fisherman. And this is what ponds are for.

A wise pond owner knows that one of the most important thin gs to do to keep the pond producing good fishing for years is to control the harvest. And a wise fisherman knows his best bet it to go along with the owner's wishes. The removal of certain species of fish controls the growth of others.

The desirable pond fish are large mouth bass and bluegills. Channel catfish are a bonus. But to keep the balance the owner must go by set rules. The conservationists recommend the removal of not more than 25 bass per acre per year.

By reducing the bass harvest, larger bluegills will be the result. All small bluegills caught should be removed. The channel catfish have little effect on the bass-bluegill balance. They can be removed as desired.

Conservationists recommend the fisherman put back none of the bluegills caught, and all bass under ten inches long.

Judge Finds Way Through A Thicket

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The neatly dressed, respectful young man stood before U.S. District Judge William R. Collinson, charged with refusing to report for military induction.

He also refused to report under military orders for civilian duty to the University of Kansas Medical Center as an alternative to induction.

"How do you plead?" the judge asked the defendant, Richard Oliver Estes, 21, of Columbia, Mo.

"Guilty," Estes replied.

"You are a conscientious objector acting out of religious scruples?" Judge Collinson inquired.

"That is right," Estes said.

"You are a member of Jehovah's Witnesses?"

"Yes."

"I understand some members of your church will not accept orders from the military," the judge said. "Well, if I accept your plea of quilty that means I am your jailer, and I am a civilian. Will you take orders from me?"

"Yes, sir," said Estes.

"If I order you to report to the medical center for the term of civilian service, will you do it?"

"Yes, sir," Estes agreed.

"Very well," the judge said. "I'll accept your plea of guilty and suspend sentence, and place you on probation with instruction to report for civilian service. Now, you will be working where these people assign you, but you will be under the orders of this court."

"Yes, sir," Estes said.

Mae West Given Credit For Demarest's Career

By WILLIAM DEMAREST

EDITOR'S NOTE—William Demarest has been in the movie business for a long time—not as long as his own estimate—and has become a familiar face on the late, late shows as well as in his continuing character of Uncle Charlies in CBS' "My Three Sons," which he assumed when the late William Frawley became ill. And the lady known as "Diamond Lil" started it all, and until now, never knew it.

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Looking back on my 753 years in show business, I guess I would have to credit Mae West for getting me into films—although she'd never heard of me at the time. It was a long, long time ago—well before there was such a thing as television.

There I was in Chicago about 35 years ago starring in my own one-hour stage revue at the Palace Theater. Spyros Skouras, the movie magnate who at that time was the head of a chain of theaters in St. Louis, came backstage one night and offered me $5,000 to take my act into one of his theaters after I had closed in Chicago. Need I say I accepted?

When I showed up at the theater in St. Louis on the appointed day, I noticed a long line outside the box office waiting to buy tickets, and I throught, "Oh great, I'm doing fine business!"

So, feeling good, I went backstage, and the stage manager said absentmindedly, "Oh, yeah, Demarest—you got 11 minutes." Before I could find out what was going on, he walked off. No one backstage told me anything else—just, "Yeah, Demarest—11 minutes."

By then I was pretty sore at this kind of casual reception, so I stormed into the manager's office to tell him who I was and demand to know what was going on. He said, "Oh, yeah, Demarest—you have 11 minutes."

I couldn't believe what was happening. I walked outside to check the billing on the marquee to make sure I was in the right place. I noticed that the line for tickets was now halfway down the next block. I looked up at the marquee and all it said was "Mae West in 'She Done Him Wrong.'"

So I went back to the manager to find out what in the name of grease paint was happening. He explained as patiently as he could that the Mae West film was doing such great business that they needed me only long enough to clear the house for the next screening.

So I paid off the rest of my actors, and I was up on stage by myself trying to entertain half a house that is preparing to leave after seeing the Mae West picture and half a house that is just coming in to see the film. My first line was "I'm just up here to pass the time while they're winding up Mae West."

After a couple of performances, my act was cut to three minutes so they would be able to squeeze in an extra showing of the movie. It was depressing.

I figured then and there that if that's what films were going to be doing vaudeville, I'd have to be nuts to stay on the stage.

I quit the stage once and for all after that engagement and headed for Hollywood—and Paramount—the very same studio that had made the Mae West picture. If you can't beat 'em, join 'em.

I didn't know Mae West and she didn't knew me, but she opened an entirely new world for me and I've been in it ever since.

Car Exhaust Ruled Cause Of 3 Deaths

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Carbon monoxide poisoning was ruled the cause of death Friday of a California couple and a Missouri girl whose bodies were found in a car parked beside U.S. 40.

The dead were Charles Hunt, 39, of San Leandro, Calif., his wife Stella, 34, and his niece, Susan Koahler, 12, of Lathrop, Mo.

Medical examiners said a lethal quantity of carbon monoxide —from a faulty ventilation system—developed within 15 minutes when an air analysis of the car was conducted.

The ignition was off when the car was found. Authorities said it appeared the family became ill, turned off the road, and the driver switched off the ignition before collapsing. Windows in the car were closed.

The Hunts and Miss Koahler were returning to California after a visit with Hunt's parents in Grant City, Mo.

Women Permitted In Taverns Now

JERSEY CITY, N.J. (AP) — Superior Court Judge Robert A. Matthews struck down Friday a city ordinance which barred women from being served in taverns in Bayonne.

Matthews said the World War II ordinance violated the New Jersey Civil Rights Act and the state Constitution.

He wrote, "For some reason, a woman standing or sitting at a bar in the company of men is in the minds of city fathers of Bayonne an occasion of sin."

But, Matthews added, "There is no supporting data for such a conclusion."

Observers Keep Up Busy Air Schedule

By JOHN T. WHEELER
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — Curtailed U.S. bombing in North Vietnam has put a far higher burden on U.S. "Peeping Tom" aircraft to bring as much grief as possible to enemy troop and supply columns once they get on the Ho Chi Minh Trail.

The start of the convoys from Hanoi and Haiphong to 135 miles south where the bombing begins may be attack-free but it is not unobserved.

Reliable sources say American aircraft are ranging far north of the 20th parallel.

The sophisticated peeping toms are said to be the SR71 and the drone missiles launched from specially rigged C130 transports with radar guidance systems.

The idea is that the reconnaissance craft are to spot convoys and troop movements as they start in the north, follow them south and then give the bombers a good target fix once the columns break into the zone where President Johnson's orders permit bombing.

The tactic is less effective than hammering away at the columns, as one Air Force general once said, "from the outskirts of Hanoi and Haiphong every mile of the way south."

But an indication of its worth comes from the enemy side. Hanoi, in laying down its demands at the preliminary peace talks, has made clear that it wants reconnaissance flights as well as bombing stopped.

The SR71 is full of camera and electronic gear.

The strike-reconnaissance (SR) model flies up to 2,000 miles an hour at 80,000 feet and can survey up to 60,000 square miles of terrain in a single hour. The SR71 is not stationed in Vietnam but flies from bases elsewhere in Southeast Asia.

The speed, altitude and antimissile electronic gear of the SR71 make it highly impervious to North Vietnamese ground defenses.

The reconnaissance drone missile has been in use for years by the U.S. Air Force for missions that included flights over mainland China and North Vietnam. A number have been shot down. They carry no pilots.

Several million feet of film are exposed by the Air Force every month. A good part of this is done at night by low-flying jets dropping photoflash cartridges for light. Each cartridge puts out a peak light of 365 million candlepower for one 35,000th of a second. A small camera flash bulb, by comparison, puts out about 4,000 candlepower.

The North Vietnamese do their best to confuse recon men and bombers, trying to throw them off the scent with elaborate subterfuges and camouflage.

A senior Air Force reconnaissance expert said: "I've been looking at aerial photos for 26 years and the way they hide those SAMs and 100 millimeters is as good as anything I've ever seen." The SAMs are missiles and the 100mm are artillery.

Another device used by the North Vietnamese is to float a section of bridge downstream during the day to give the impression the bridge has been cut. The section is hauled back at night and the trucks roll again. Trains are hidden during the day on camouflaged sidings. Sections of track are sometimes pulled up during the day—again to simulate a cut—and then replaced at night.

The fantastic amount of labor available to Hanoi makes impossible any permanent cutting of the North's communications system, Air Force officers have said.

"The best we can do is slow it down," one observed.

Sheep Won't Keep Lagoon Grass Cut

FUNKSTOWN, Md. (AP) — Why cut the grass around the town lagoon? Just get some sheep and let them nibble it off. That was the argument Clarence Stockslager, town maintenance man, used on the burgess and commissioners.

So he bought 17 head of sheep and turned them loose. The sheep grazed for a couple of weeks. The grass got longer. The town fathers' tempers got shorter.

Finally, Funkstown bought a mower.

The sheep are still moping around the lagoon. But the mower does all the work.

Miniboards Big Now

VENTURA, Calif. (AP) — What goes faster than surfboard, turns sharper and is harder to paddle? A miniboard, of course.

Surfers call the seven-to eight-foot surfboards a third-stage development in the sea sport which took its great leap forward in the 1950s with the foam-fiberglass replacements for the wood boards. The new ones are three to four feet shorter than the old boards.

"It's like—wow!" exclaimed one surfer. Custom shops are turning them out in great numbers.

Home Rule Election

A charter form of government for Sedalia?

Do the people want it?

Sedalia Jaycees are expressing earnest determination to find out. They have resolved to obtain a petition calling for a popular vote on the subject.

Their action Thursday night was a result of city council tabling a request by the Jaycees to call an election. An aldermanic majority was reluctant to take the initiative on a matter frequently referred to as home rule. There was some indication councilmen didn't quite know what charter form of government was all about although Mayor Ralph Walker has been promoting it for a long time.

Council's reluctance at this point is just as well because now an organized group from a civic organization will undertake the arduous task of soliciting 1,200 or more signatures to a petition calling for an election. The signers will certainly want to be well-informed about the matter, and this the Jaycees propose to do from now on.

Concerning the matter of obtaining signatures, the Jaycees will not resort to any subterfuge like that which is reported to have occurred in California. Some citizens there said they were persuaded to sign a petition to oust Governor Reagan by being told that the document was intentioned to lower taxes.

Sedalians are not that gullible and the Jaycees not that dishonest.

As for calling an election to decide whether Sedalians would like to adopt home rule and at the same time elect 13 commissioners to draw up a charter, what's the difference? Of course, an election will cost some money, but if 1,200 people want to call one, then let them be given recognition and settle this matter of home rule which has been talked about here for over 40 years.

Is the charter form of government a hobgoblin? Rational persons know better that it isn't, but some persons fear change whether it be in their daily social and business rountines or in local government.

Why not see what 13 elected commissioners can draw up in the form of a local charter? The people will then get a second crack at it by approving or disapproving the recommendations for a change of pace in Sedalia's administrative atmosphere.

Apropos, in this instance, is the axiom:

"Be not the first to try the new, nor yet the last to lay the old aside."

Certainly, Sedalia will not be the first community to try the charter form of government. Many cities have preceded us. But we have been the last in laying some old methods aside not only at the government level but in many other respects.

Change can be stimulating for those who have gotten into a rut. So let's see if the Jaycees can be as persuasive about charter government as they have been with so many other projects.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

LBJ Eyes Old South American Feud

By DREW PEARSON

SAN ANTONIO — Lyndon Johnson not only worked at welding together the once revolution-torn republics of Central America last week, but also tried to heal the deepest wound in South America.

The first he did publicly by visiting each of the Central American republics after conferring with their presidents. The second he did privately in a talk with President Rene Barrientos Ortuno of Bolivia, whose country has broken diplomatic relations with Chile and still nurses wounds from the war of the Pacific involving Chile, Peru, and Bolivia.

Two American presidents and one war hero — Calvin Coolidge, Harry Truman, and Gen. John J. Pershing — have tried to heal the wounds among these three countries. All have failed.

President Johnson did not try any penetrating probing with President Barrientos. He merely made some preliminary probes during a private luncheon at the LBJ ranch.

The problem is one with special appeal to a president who has pioneered new Texas irrigation projects and who poignantly appreciates the value of water. At the LBJ ranch last year it didn't rain for ten months. But in the Chilean area around Arica rain has not fallen for 400 years. Yet not far away, in the plateau of Bolivia, rivers meander through the mountains and then go underground, wasted; while Lake Titicaca, the highest lake in the world, remains with its waters unharnessed.

If the problems among Chile, Peru, and Bolivia could be settled, therefore, the great desert area stretching along the Pacific coast in southern Peru and northern Chile could blossom like a rose.

—Chips on Shoulder—

This has not been done only because the three countries which converge in this area have chips on their shoulders. Each country is afraid its neighbor will get a better deal than the other. Bolivia perhaps has been the touchiest. It has broken relations with Chile over a so-called river — actually a creek — whose waters the Chileans tapped. And President Barrientos boycotted the historic meeting of Pan-American presidents which Johnson organized last year.

President Johnson last week showed no resentment over that absence of Barrientos when the two lunched. He showed the Bolivian president around the ranch personally, driving in his Lincoln convertible through the pasture to inspect LBJ's white-faced Herefords, and through the nearby game preserve where about 500 deer are fed.

Johnson's pastures are especially green this year thanks to unexpectedly heavy rainfall. They contrasted with the bleak, sandy wastes of the Pacific South American coast where Bolivia has long wanted an outlet to the sea. Bolivian tin is now shipped by rail to the Chilean ports of Arica or Antofagasta, where Chile gives Bolivia the special tariff privileges of a free port.

However, what Bolivia has been asking is a free city on the Chilean desert about ten miles square, where it could develop an oil refinery, a tin smelter, and other port facilities. Economists predict that such a city could become an important contribution to the industrial complex of South America and could bring employment to the nearby countryside.

—Man of Courage—

President Eduardo Frei Montalva of Chile has been receptive to this idea. However, the Bolivians in the past have not been willing to meet with Chile, partly because President Barrientos refused to attend the summit conference. An additional problem, and perhaps the most difficult, is the opposition of the Peruvian military.

The Peruvian army still nurses a secret grudge to regain the territory which it lost to Chile during the war of the Pacific in 1879-83.

These are some of the political complications surrounding the deepest wound in Latin America. Despite the complications, the economic advantages to be gained from their solution are tremendous. And while President Johnson merely scratched the surface, Pan-American diplomats are hoping he will follow up by offering the governments of Chile, Peru, and Bolivia the good offices of the United States toward a permanent solution.

President Johnson was impressed with President Barrientos as a man of great personal courage. He had received an earlier report regarding the unique labor relations which Barrientos had negotiated with Bolivian miners, who in the past have been the most rebellious segment of the Bolivian populations. Barrientos went to see the miners without a bodyguard and with Bolivian troops 60 miles away.

One mine leader handed him a stick of dynamite. Barrientos handed it back. "I dare you to light the fuse," he said.

The Bolivian president delivered a talk to 5,000 miners regarding his plans for the future.

"These are your mines," he said. "But we have to make money from the mines, and we have been losing money. This is why we are reducing wages and paying on a production basis. The more you produce, the more you will be paid. But if you don't produce, you won't get paid as much as in the past."

The miners finally agreed. Last year Bolivia's tin mines, for the first time under government operation, made a profit of $12 million.

The Death Penalty

Attorney General Ramsey Clark recently testified before a Senate committee in support of Senator Philip A. Hart's (D-Mich.) bill to abolish the Federal use of capital punishment. The Attorney General said that for the government to execute anyone, even the assassin of a President, "chiefly serves to remind us how close we remain to the jungle."

The Hart bill is expected to pass. When it does the United States will join 70 other nations and 13 of our own states which have already abolished the death penalty.

"Killing a person after he has killed another," says Murl E. Alexander, Director of the United States Bureau of Prisons, "does justice neither to the victim, the murderer, nor to ourselves. It does not undo the deed — it only intensifies the tragedy of the original crime."

Executions in this country have declined. State governors, who when the courts refuse to intervene have to make the death penalty final, are often opposed to capital punishment. Polls show that more persons favor the end of the death penalty than favor it.

America Demands an End To Brutality and Violence

By DAVID POLING

With a sudden, dramatic rush, the moral climate of the United States is ripe for, even demanding, a total restraint on violence. The murders of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy and the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. have caused a deep revulsion and regret among thinking people of this country. A sense of shame and guilt and grieving has given way to a tone of absolute urgency. It is touching everything from new gun laws in Congress to removal of terror, killing and brutality on television.

In foreign affairs this means the end of the Vietnam war. In domestic politics, programs of reform and renewal are gaining sudden interest from a wide coalition of church groups, private business and public officials who want to help the poor and remodel an urban society in the process.

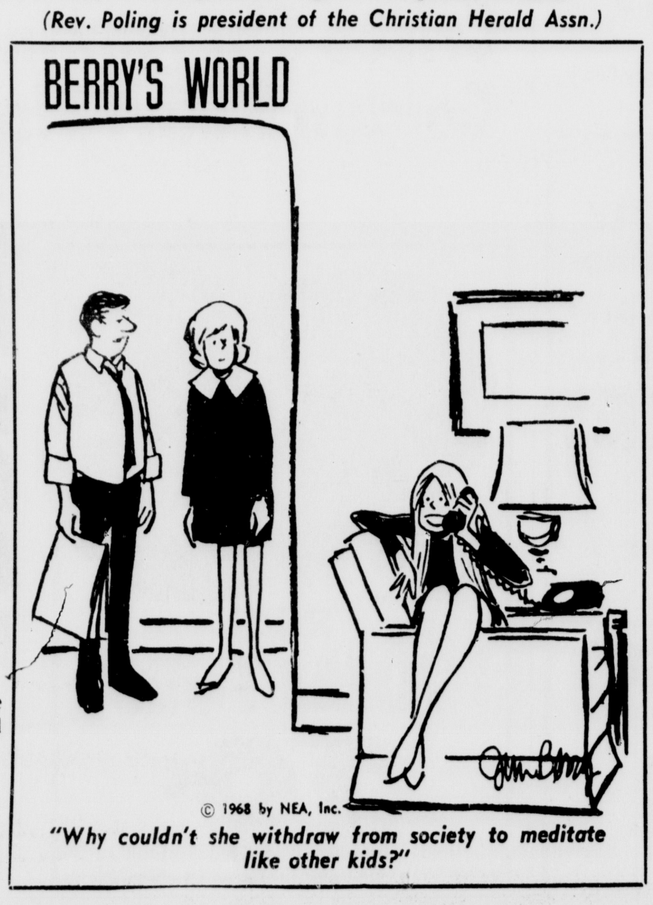

An amazing example of this is the surge of interest to aid children and young people in our ghetto areas. For instance, this summer, as in other years, the Christian Herald Children's Home will provide a free vacation for nearly 1,000 youngsters from the slums of New York City. Hundreds of letters now accompany checks, asking how further help may be given to the children of poverty. There is a deep anguish in the soul of this country and people are not content to slip back into a moral immunity.

The restraint of violence has to involve much more than gun control laws but that is a good practical start. Actually, it is a long-term, quite massive reshaping of attitudes and vocabulary. Television empires have already begun to shudder as producers and network executives take a hard look at the ghastly programs which have featured murder, rape and war as normal "entertainment" for children and youth. The Hollywood film makers are already in minor convulsions over the release, right after Kennedy's death, of "The Green Berets." Too many citizens no longer accept John Wayne and his machine gun view of patriotism. Nearly 500 children in Long Island, N.Y., turned in a pile of toy guns and daggers, taking the "pledge" that they were not going to play this game any more. Jordan Marsh, one of the leading department stores, not only in Boston but New England, announced that it was closing down its armament sales.

We have so saturated our culture with brutality—and blandly accepted the scenario—that we cannot comprehend the extent of our inhumanity and cruelty. If anything can be any more shocking than what we have done to Vietnam, it is to the animal kingdom in the United States. Mel Morse, president of the Humane Society of the United States, has written a scathing indictment of how our nation brutally abuses animals. In his "Ordeal of the Animals" (Prentice-Hall $5.95) he reports on the "scientific" butchering that is inflicated on thousands of dogs and cats. He lashes out at the sportsmen and their slaughter of everything that moves. He challenges the rodeo industry, the meat packers, the horse racers and the face cream producers. I don't know when I have read a more horrifying story of the callous treatment that we have dished out to the animal world. What Morse is doing, in a most timely manner, is showing the world how violent we are in our relationships—man to beast.

We are not saying that compassion has suddenly overcome conflict or that kindness will surpass killing. But we are seeing a hopeful signal—a yearning, a desire, a reaching for a much better way of life. It's a long way to Christmas but we are ready for an epidemic of good will, peace on earth.

In the recent Eastern championships bridge teachers Ed Pinner and Bob McPherran avoided the spade trap and landed in the correct contract of six hearts. Since they were playing an International Match Point match, each one gave up the play for seven and played safe to make their slam contract.

The bidding was the same at both tables. Both North players chose to open with one club and then to give an immediate heart raise. In the New York area most experts favor five card major opening bids and sound major raises. Thus both Ed and Bob felt their hands warranted immediate Blackwood action.

The play was also identical. Each declarer went right up with dummy's ace of clubs, drew trumps with two leads, cashed the king of diamonds, entered dummy with the 10 of trumps, discarded the queen of clubs on the ace of diamonds, ruffed a club, entered dummy with the ace of spades, ruffed the last club and led a low spade toward dummy's jack.

When West showed out each South smiled contentedly and called for a low spade from dummy. East was on lead and had to either give declarer a ruff and discard or lead away from his queen of spades.

This line of play gave up a potential overtrick in case West had started with two or three spades headed by the queen but in IMP play you follow the rubber bridge practice of making sure of a game or slam contract. If the jack of trumps had fallen on the first trump lead it would have been possible to time the play so that the second spade could be led toward dummy but with the jack forgetting to drop, each declarer had to use dummy's ace of spades as an entry to strip the hand of clubs and make the end play possible.

Faces

It matters not the kind of face
But what within it lies,
Not beauty, but the light that shines
With deep love in the eyes,
They may be any color
If within them may be seen
The kindness of the gentle
Or the hardness of the mean,
The indifference of self-centered
Or the coldness of the lone,
The warmth of compassion
Or the sorrow they have known;
The mouth, too, tells you something
By the way the corners curve
It shows with one false friendly
Or one with much reserve,
It reflects the light-hearted
Who is always spreading cheer,
It reveals those not trustworthy
Or the one who is sincere;
A face can tell you many things
That's in a person's heart,
Its little lines of character
Set each one quite apart,
It may be very handsome
Yet weakness plainly shows,
It may be very homely
Still strength from it flows,
Success in worldly ventures
Mean nothing in a face
For oft' they're very blank beside
Some one in common place,
But faces tell a story
More than we realize,
Just what we are reflects in
The lines, the mouth, the eyes.

YOUR DENTAL HEALTH

Several Alternatives For Diastema Treatment

By WILLIAM LAWRENCE, D.D.S.

DEAR DR. LAWRENCE: I have a large space between my two front teeth. Must I have braces? My parents can't afford to pay very much. Is there some other way of getting rid of this space?

ANSWER: First, it must be said that spaces between front teeth are not necessarily unattractive. In fact, one of the prettiest girls I know, my mother, has a space between her front teeth.

Yet in some faces a diastema, as it is called, can be a cosmetic liability. It seems to particularly accentuate long noses and broad faces.

I once overheard a girl with a diastema referred to as, "...That girl with a space between her front teeth big enough to drive a truck through."

For those adult mouths in which a diastema is abnormal or unnatural-looking in relation to other facial conformations, or when it disturbs speech as well as the cosmetic psyche, then something should be done about "getting rid of it."

What can be done? Orthodontic braces are usually the treatment of choice. This may also involve minor surgery to remove the tiny, but tough, ligament that sometimes causes diastema by growing down between the front teeth.

After braces, maintaining teeth in their acquired position in the jaw can be a continuing problem. Sometimes removable plastic and wire splints must be worn at night. In some cases, it's possible to "fix" the teeth with a permanent gold splint that's fashioned to fit behind the teeth so it doesn't show.

It's true that this treatment can become rather expensive. And yet, alternative treatments are often not as cosmetically pleasing.

What, then, are the alternatives? First and simplest is no treatment. Just don't allow the diastema to become the bane of your existence. Instead, accentuate other more attractive features of your face.

The second simplest treatment is to cap the two front teeth with crowns that are somewhat larger than the natural teeth. This can be an ideal means of erasing a narrow diastema but looks horrible when the new teeth are made too artifically wide.

Another treatment is to extract the two front teeth and make a bridge that covers all six front teeth, making each tooth somewhat larger than the natural one, in this way filling the space.

Democrat Pickups

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hawkins, Walnut Hills, are probably enjoying their vacation in Hawaii, but one stage of their trip was disconcerting.

First, they got behind schedule in order to attend a class reunion in Sedalia. Afterwards when they arrived in Los Angeles, their luggage had arrived ahead of them and was neatly stacked in the center of their hotel room.

Hawkins started to open one of the pieces but couldn't find the keys. His wife thought he had them. A few frantic phone calls brought a locksmith who opened the luggage but the keys were not inside.

Ruffled Chickens

The United States is now engaged in its second "chicken war." The offensive on the part of this country involves attempts by U.S. exporters to regain what they consider a fair share of the chicken business in the European Common Market. Subsidies and high tariffs have shut the U.S. from major chicken markets on the continent for six years.

With all the country fied chicken and the consumption of eggs, from the simple three or four minute boiled egg to the elegant eggs benedict, it is difficult for most of us to appreciate the significance of exporting the common chicken.

In 1965, the U.S. began to subsidize its chicken exports. The Common Market countries resisted, so the U.S. gave up by exporting only to Austria and Switzerland. This year, the subsidies have been resumed, but Switzerland continued to be the main European recipient of U.S. chickens. With the return of subsidies, this independent mountainous country offered fewer complications. Swiss served U.S. chicken will continue to be on the menu at the rate of six million pounds until September 1. After that date, the chicken war will continue despite the Kennedy Round Tariff negotiations. It may be better to use our own chicken to feed hungry Americans than to subsidize the chicken farmers to raise them for the European market.

THE LAST AMERICAN

by Don Oakley and John Lane

12 Blue, Gray---and Black

My paramount object in this struggle is to save the Union, and is not whether to save or destroy slavery • If I could save the Union without freeing any slave, I would do it; if I could save the Union by freeing some and leaving others alone, I would also do that.

—Abraham Lincoln

Lest Americans forget, if, indeed, the history books ever told them:

Before the guns fell silent in America's bloodiest war, some 200,000 Negro soldiers and sailors fought in the Union cause—100,000 from the North and border states, another 100,000 from the South. One in every four seamen in the Union Navy was a Negro. Others served as scouts and spies and laborers.

Nearly 40,000 blue-clad blacks died in some 450 battles in which they participated; 21 Negroes won the Medal of Honor, 12 in one battle alone.

Unlike their white comrades, Negro soldiers had to contend not only with death but with lower pay (until near the end of the war) and with no chance for officership. Neither, until near the end, did the South accord them the rights of prisoners of war.

Thousands were enslaved or re-enslaved or executed as rebels or simply murdered. In the worst such incident, the capture of Fort Pillow, Tenn., in April 1864, Confederate troops cut down the Negro garrison to the last man.

As in the Revolutionary War, the Negro had to fight for the right to fight. For more than a year after Fort Sumter, Abraham Lincoln, fearful of losing the slave-holding border states to the Confederacy, resisted appeals that Negroes be allowed to enlist. Later, he was to say that without them, the cause would have been lost.

Abolitionists also brought tremendous pressure on Lincoln to hit the South where it hurt most, by freeing the slaves. When it became clear that the war was not to end except with complete victory over the South, Lincoln moved. He signed the Emancipation Proclamation on Jan. 1, 1863.

Although it freed no slaves in the loyal states, so many of those were freeing themselves that this question was academic. And although only advancing armies could give the proclamation effect in the South, this too was only a matter of time.

Eventually, the 13th Amendment remedied the defect in the Constitution which had once moved abolitionist Wendell Phillips to curse the document and William Lloyd Garrison to burn it in public. After more than 300 years, Negro slavery in America was ended.

But had Negro freedom begun?

Man Is Slain In His Bed By Intruders

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Intruders apparently intent on rifling a downstairs tavern operated by his parents killed Terry Shireman in his upstairs apartment while he slept early Friday morning, police said.

The body of the 20-year-old assistant golf pro at the Meadowbrook Country Club, beaten about the head with a blunt instrument, was discovered about 8 a.m. Friday by his father, Warren Shireman, after opening the tavern.

Police deduced that Terry was slain around 2 a.m., a half hour after the tavern closed for the night. He had been struck several times on the head with a weapon wrapped in fabric, but there were no signs of a struggle.

The apartment, on the second floor of the two - story, brick building on Kansas City's southeast side, had been entered through a door in which the window was broken.

A safe containing $500 and $15 on a desk in an office adjoining the tavern was untouched. Money was taken from an automatic pool table and a cigarette machine in the tavern.

A wrist watch found in a patch of weeds behind the tavern was identified as Terry's, and police said it was being checked for fingerprints

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — More Americans hold unfavorable attitudes toward the U.S. Supreme Court today than they did a year ago, according to the Gallup Poll.

Unfavorable attitudes today outweigh favorable sentiments by a 3-to-2 ratio, the poll reported Wednesday.

A year ago this month Americans showed mixed feelings toward the high court with about as many giving it "excellent" or "good" ratings as those saying it was "fair" or "poor", the survey added.

CARNIVAL

KEVIN the BOLD

KREIGH COLLINS

UNBEKNOWN TO ANYONE IN GROSSTEIN, COLONEL SANTIAGO HAD RECEIVED A REPORT OF AN AMBUSHED CAVALRY REMOUNT TROOP, AND THAT THE FAMOUS STALLION EUGENE WAS MISSING.

STRUKEN SAYS HE HEARD YOU TELL GIZA, THE CARNIVAL GIRL, THAT YOU STOLE ONE OF HIS MAJESTY'S LIPIZZANERS. WHAT HAVE YOU TO SAY, KEVIN?

SIR, I DID TELL HER THIS!

HOW TO TAME BEARS AND OTHER WILD THINGS

HELP ME OUT, KEVIN, OR ELSE I WILL HAVE TO HANG YOU. FOR HEAVEN'S SAKE, SAY THE HORSE RAN AWAY AND YOU CAUGHT HIM — OR SOMETHING!

HE COULD NOT RUN. HE WAS TOO WEAK EVEN TO WALK MUCH. HE WAS STARVED. HE HAD BEEN BEATEN AND WAS ABOUT TO BE SLAUGHTERED FOR FOOD!

I WOULD HAVE DONE WHAT YOU DID. IF YOU WON'T LIE I WILL— OFFICIALLY YOU FOUND THE HORSE—ER—ON THE ROAD.

NOW THAT I HAVE YOUR NECK OUT OF THE NOOSE, I HAVE A REQUEST.

I AM SHORT A COMPANY COMMANDER!

A TURK FORCE NEARS A PASS WE GUARD AND A HOLDING ACTION IS CALLED FOR, WHILE WE AWAIT REINFORCEMENTS. WILL YOU SERVE?

TO FIGHT THE TURKS? AYE!

STRUKEN IS INFLAMED WHEN HE LEARNS THAT THE MAN GIZA ADMIRES IS NOT TO HANG, BUT IS TO BE HIS COMMANDER.

WELL, LOVER BOY, THE FAIR GIZA WILL GLOW WITH PRIDE WHEN HE LEADS US OUT TONIGHT!

US? DON'T BE TOO SURE!

HERE'S A TRAIL THAT AVOIDS THE PASS, IRISHMAN! THE TURKS WILL PAY WITH GOLD FOR THIS INFORMATION. YOU AND ALL GROSSTEIN WILL PAY IN BLOOD!

POLLY'S POINTERS

DEAR POLLY---Broken beads can be restrung very quickly if the tip of the thread is dipped in colorless nail polish which is allowed to dry. Put the beads in order on the sticky side of cellophane tape, if the beads are of graduated sizes.---BRENDA

DEAR POLLY—When I take money rolls to the bank I am asked for my name and address on each roll. Gummed name and address stickers work well for this and are easier to read.—DONNA

DEAR POLLY---I use alcohol to wash windows. Just moisten a paper towel (or put in a spray bottle) and wipe only one pane at a time as the alcohol dries quickly. Wipe the pane with a clean paper towel. No streaks but a beautiful shine will result.---H. K. L.

DEAR POLLY—If you become annoyed when the pencil rolls off the table when keeping score at a card party or at home, put a safety pin through the eraser and the pencil will stay where you put it.—DONIA

Polly pays a dollar for every idea used. Send them to her, care of this newspaper.

DEAR POLLY—A good item for the kitchen sink is a chunk of old sponge in a nylon bag, such as fruit comes in from the market. The item does not scratch so is wonderful for getting between the tines of forks, really cleans off plates and the stove and skillet also benefit from its use. Don't forget to make one for the bathroom, too. An old shoulder pad can substitute if you do not have a piece of sponge.—MRS. McSCOTCH

DEAR POLLY---We have no children but young folks frequently are callers. To make inexpensive but attractive toys for such visits I have painted an assortment of small boxes, covered them with pictures and decorated them in other ways. These make blocks that the children enjoy playing with. Empty thread spools and cardboard tubes also seem interesting to them. The spools can be painted and strung on a shoe string to make necklaces or they can be loose for the children to string themselves.---MRS. J. W. B.

DEAR POLLY—My husband recently had major surgery as I had earlier in the year. When he had the strength for a tub bath and the bending and exertion tired both of us I started putting the plastic bottle of hair shampoo in the bath water to warm it so it is not so cold on his head which does not have too much hair. Wash shoulders, back and arms, then rinse the top of the body. Dry with fingertip towels which do not dangle into the water and half the drying job is done before the patient gets out of the tub and onto a chair where the drying is finished.—RELLA RUTH

FOR BILLY GRAHAM

How do you stand on Vietnam? Are you a hawk, a dove, or neither? —B.D., Rochester, N. Y.

● I never have made a public statement for or against American policy in Vietnam. I find that deeply committed Christians are divided on this subject. I do not pretend to know the answers to the complicated problems of Asia.

FOR SEN. ERNEST GRUENING of Alaska

How has the population explosion affected Alaska?—Lorraine Hopfinger, Bison, S. D.

● The population explosion hasn't affected Alaska to any great extent, although it may in time. The myth of a savage climate has kept people from coming North, but in terms of growth, Alaska's population has risen from 73,000 in 1940 to approximately 270,000 today. This is still less than one person per square mile compared with an average of 50.5 persons per square mile for the mainland states.

FOR RICHARD M. NIXON

Is it true that your financial statement made public upon becoming Vice President in 1952 revealed only two mortgaged homes and a small amount of life insurance?—C.L., Donalsonville, Ga.

● My 1952 financial statement read this way: Owned: a 1950 automobile, a $3,000 equity in my house in California in which my parents were living, a $20,000 equity in my Washington house, $4,000 in life insurance, plus a G. I. term policy which would expire in two years, no stocks or bonds; no interest in any other property or business. Owed: $10,000 on the California house, $20,000 on the Washington house.

FOR ARLENE DAHL, actress

Do you dress to please yourself, other women, or men?—M. L., Tuscon, Ariz.

● When the man in my life expresses particular preferences, I always keep them in mind when selecting apparel. Men have innate good taste and excellent judgment.

FOR BOB GIBSON,
pitcher, St. Louis Cardinals

Why did you choose baseball over a basketball career with the Harlem Globetrotters?—Paul M. Landskroener, Evansdale, Iowa

● Because of the great amount of traveling done by the Globetrotters. It is true that baseball requires travel, but it doesn't compare with the year-round, world-wide travels of the Globetrotters. The extra time with my family, plus baseball's excellent opportunities, made my decision one I'll never regret.

FOR CAROL LAWRENCE

What sort of jewelry do you like? What is your favorite piece of jewelry? —M. R., Niagara Falls, N.Y.

● My husband Robert Goulet gave me a beautiful antique garnet pin that I just adore. I favor garnets over all other gems and antique jewelry over modern.

FOR RAYMOND BAILEY, costar of "The Beverly Hillbillies"

What is the year and make of the antique automobile used on your show?—A.M. Trentz, Waterloo, Iowa

● It's a vintage 1923 Oldsmobile.

FOR HENRY W. FOWLER,
Secretary of the Treasury

Why are some dollar bills inscribed "In God We Trust" and others aren't? —Mrs. R.L. Welborn, Trinity, N. C.

● In 1965 Congress provided that the motto, "In God We Trust" be placed on all U.S. currency. It then became a case of replacing old plates which did not bear the inscription. All currency now is printed with the motto, except for the $10 New York Federal Reserve Note. That, too, will be replaced soon.

FOR ART LINKLETTER
of "House Party"

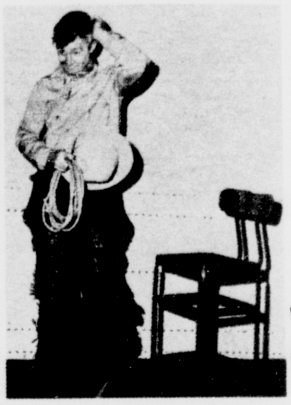

How long has Jack Slattery been your announcer? How did you first meet?—Robert B. Meister, Green Bay, Wis.

● Jack auditioned for the first radio show Jan. 15, 1945. We've been together ever since.

WHAT IN THE WORLD!

Then and Now "The reason I feel free to kid the politicians is because personally I don't belong to any organized political party. I'm a Democrat." That could be a modern comedian talking, but it's not. "It's the Will Rogers line that always gets the biggest laugh," says Warren Robertson, who "does" Will Rogers the way Hal Holbrook "does" Mark Twain. "People often think I dress and talk like Will but make up the lines. I don't. It's just that the things he was saying back in the 1920s are still funny today because they're still true today."

Warren Robertson

Signs of the Times As you're driving about, you may come face to face with a huge billboard that reads: "The Eiffel Tower has rusty bolts—See America First." The patriotic signs were donated by Rollins Outdoor Advertising to back President Johnson's campaign to keep Americans and their dollars at home. Watch for others that read: "Venice is sinking—vacation in Philadelphia" and "French pastry is fattening—buy American."

Billboard Americana

How Charity Begins Americans gave $14.6 billion to charity last year, about a billion more than in 1966 and more than double what they gave 10 years ago. As usual, almost half the donations went to religious causes. Though corporations and foundations get the publicity with their large grants, it's still the individual citizen who does 76 percent of the total giving.

Food of the Future By the year 2 000, experts predict that mother will press a couple of buttons to start complete meals moving automatically from storage to microwave range to table —all within seconds. If that sounds hard to swallow, they point out that we already have meatless meat, imitation milk, instant mashed potatoes, and oblong tomatoes that progress automatically from vine to ketchup bottle without ever being touched by human hands. Next: instant indigestion.

Par for the Course An IBM computer chewed over the statistics on seven of golf's top tournament players and then announced: Jack Nicklaus was the worst putter, averaging 2.6 three-putt greens per tournament as opposed to just one three-putt green apiece for Dan Sikes and Doug Sanders. Nicklaus only sent 63 percent of his drives into the fairway, as compared with 70 percent for Sanders and 73 percent for Arnold Palmer. Perhaps you're wondering: if Nicklaus plays so badly, how did he get so rich? The computer's answer: he hits the green with 75 percent of his approach shots, as compared with 68 percent for the competition.

An Astrologer Looks at

Renowned astrologer Katharine de Jersey has cast the to lead it; she foresees crushed ambitions,

By JOSEPH F. GOODAVAGE

WHAT DO the stars hold for the Democratic and Republican Presidential hopefuls in the coming conventions in Chicago and Miami? And whose horoscope indicates the best chance to win the White House in November?

One of the nation's leading astrologers, Katharine de Jersey, whose clients include figures from Hollywood and big business, cast the horoscopes of the major contenders from both parties in preparation for this exclusive FAMILY WEEKLY interview.

Here are her stellar and planetary prognostications for the momentous events facing America.

Q. Is there such a thing as a horoscope for the United States just as there are horoscopes for individuals?

A. Yes. Franklin, Adams, and Jefferson calculated the best time for the signing of the Declaration of Independence. That's the horoscope America has.

Q. Can professional astrologers determine future national events as well as the character of America and the general mood of its people?

A. Yes. First of all, the Sun in the U.S. horoscope was in the Sign of Cancer cojoined with Jupiter and Venus, in what is called the "second house"—the house of money—and we Americans are known as being a powerful and wealthy nation. The Sign of Gemini was on the ascendant, along with Uranus and Mars. Gemini has a dual nature, and historically we've been divided: for example, the colonists against England, then the Union against the Confederacy. Even today the country is in a tragically dual situation.

Q. What do your astrological readings indicate for the Republican and Democratic conventions themselves?

A. With the Republican convention opening Aug. 5, three days before the full Moon of Aug. 8, the Sun in 13 degrees of Leo will be favorably aspected by the eclipse of Oct. 6. This shows the Republican convention is favored by the eclipse and will be favored by the nation, meaning the GOP nominee will win the Presidential election in November. The Democratic convention opens on Aug. 26, and the Sun will be in three degrees of Virgo. From Monday to Friday, the Democratic convention's chart will form an adverse aspect to the horoscope chart of the United States. The Democrats will have quite an exciting time of it. In fact, there'll be a real free-for-all!

Q. What do the stars show for former Vice President Richard Nixon?

A. Mr. Nixon has favorable aspects—beautiful aspects—until the time of the convention. Then the strength of the planetary support in his horoscope will wane.

Q. Drastically?

A. Richard Nixon's chart is harmonious with that of the United States, and these aspects will bring him along beautifully. Just at the time of the Republican convention, however, he once more may have the rug pulled out from under him.

Q. What other "sudden reversals" are in store for the candidates?

A. Sudden changes in our national attitude. The people will develop an entirely different view of issues, for one thing. On election day, which is Nov. 5, Uranus will be quadrature to Venus in the U.S. chart; this means a radical change in the allegiance of the American people from one course to another. Whoever we elect as our President will serve well, benefit the nation and the best interests of the people.

Q. You once said that the timing for Ronald Reagan's inauguration as governor of California—at 12:01 a.m.—was so perfect you suspected him of receiving astrological advice. Do you still believe this?

A. Yes, I do. You must admit it was an unusual hour! Few politicians since Franklin, Adams, and Jefferson have set midnight as a normal time to begin new projects. I've worked out the chart for Reagan's inaugural with great exactitude and checked the planetary positions for the time. I must congratulate the astrologer—I don't know who he was—who selected that time for Governor Reagan because it was excellent. If he'd been just a few hours earlier or later, it would have been an entirely different story.

Q. How does Ronald Reagan, whom you believe follows astrological advice, compare with the U.S. horoscope?

A. Most interestingly, the Sun in his horoscope is conjunct to the Moon in the U.S. horoscope. This means they're in the same position and that he personally identifies with the goals of the nation as set forth

How Valid Is Astrology?

The author of this article set out more than 10 years ago to expose astrology as a fraud. Instead, he discovered that scientific institutions, academic bodies, and large businesses are studying and using astrology. RCA, for example, plots the positions of the planets just as astrologers do to predict weather weeks in advance. New York's Upstate Medical Center and Syracuse's V.A. Hospital have discovered the human biomagnetic field which reacts to the position and phase of the Moon, the planets, and the Sun, as well as distant stars. Dr. Richard Head, NASA's chief scientist in studying the effect of planetary bodies on astronauts out in space, also has concluded that people right here on Earth are profoundly influenced by the celestial bodies. Joseph F. Goodavage has published two books on the subject and is one of the few writers who does articles on astrology for scientific publications.

by our revolutionary founding fathers. Whether he is elected President or Vice President, he is destined to play a major role.

Q. What about Gov. Nelson Rockefeller? How does his horoscope compare with that of the nation and with the chart of the Republican convention?

A. Not only does he have an excellent chance, it is entirely likely, according to all the good aspects between his chart and that of the nation, that he'll carry off the Republican nomination.

Incidentally, there's a very interesting fact concerning Governor Rockefeller and President Johnson; both were born in the same year, each has Saturn in Aries. Whenever Saturn returns to the position it held at the time of birth, great changes occur in the person's life. This year, Saturn returns to its natal location in both men's charts, but the effects on each will be quite different.

Q. Would you elaborate on these different effects?

A. Saturn's return coincides with a very decisive cyclic change. For the past seven years, Uranus, the planet associated with unexpected changes, was transitting the Sign of Virgo and was partially responsible for the sudden accession to power of President Johnson, a Virgoan, and of Vice President Humphrey, a Geminian. By Oct. 1, Uranus will move into Libra and suddenly elevate people born in the Sign of Cancer, like Rockefeller, and people born with the Sun in Capricorn, like Nixon. This doesn't mean Nixon will be President, but he will be very influential behind the scenes. Rockefeller's chart indicates the sudden assumption of a great burden and the sacrifice of his personal happiness, particularly in his private life.

Q. What about the man many believe responsible for Lyndon Johnson's decision not to run—Sen. Eugene McCarthy?

A. Senator McCarthy was born with the Sun in Aries, and all such persons are going through a decisive and challenging period. Aries is quick to pick up a challenge. They thrive on it and love it. McCarthy entered the Presidential race against enormous odds within his own party. Other astrologers mightn't agree, but I feel McCarthy would serve the nation unselfishly because—like Nixon and Reagan—he has the Moon in Aquarius, the same position of the Moon in the U.S. horoscope.

Q. Is it your prediction then that Nelson Rockefeller will be the next President of the United States?

A. I believe he may be.

Q. Will Rockefeller and Reagan play prominent roles at the convention and the Presidential elections?

A. Reagan as the nominee is doubtful, but I believe either he or Mayor John Lindsay of New York will be chosen as Vice President.

Q. Are you predicting the Presidency for Eugene McCarthy?

A. McCarthy will continue to have a beneficial, helpful influence on the country—but not as President. His natal Saturn is in the same degree and Zodiacal Sign as the Sun in the horoscope of the United States. To the knowledgeable astrologer, this represents a strong destiny. But I don't believe he will get the nomination. For one thing, his Jupiter and Sun are in adverse aspect to the Sun and Jupiter in the U.S. chart.

Q. Now what about President Johnson, who has disavowed any further interest in seeking public office?

A. For a man who has very favorable aspects, he has a terrible time of it. His horoscope shows that he will have many successful and powerful aspects right up to election time—then they will disappear.

Q. What's in store for Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey?

A. I've studied his chart very carefully and do not believe he will be considered as a serious contender even for the second slot on the Democratic ticket. Although it won't work out until a month or so afterward, both he and Mr. Johnson may be catapulted out of office by the Oct. 6 eclipse, and I detect that Mr. Humphrey may lose out through some tricky maneuvering.

I might add that Uranus is mainly responsible for raising Virgoans such as Johnson and Geminians like Humphrey into greater prominence within the past seven years. This autumn, however, will accent the Cardinal Signs, Libra, Cancer, Capricorn, and Aries: Rockefeller, McCarthy, and Nixon. Eight years from now, however, the Fixed Signs of Taurus, Leo, Scorpio, and Aquarius will come into their own after Rockefeller has served his second term. This group includes Sen. Edward Brooke of Massachusetts and Governor Reagan. I believe Mr. Brooke will be a Presidential candidate in 1976 and that Mayor Lindsay will play an equally important role.

Q. Do you expect further political activity from President Johnson?

A. Yes. In spite of the trouble he has had and will continue to have, his popularity will increase to the point where a "draft Johnson" movement may sweep the floor at convention time. He certainly didn't and still doesn't expect that the electorate would just drop him cold. It looks as though he might accept a draft and that he'll possibly choose McCarthy as his running mate.

Q. What positive events do we have to look forward to?

A. We may not like the next two years at all. We are, as it were, making a sharp right-hand turn into the flow of time and history, and we're going to learn some bitter lessons. But this is the Aquarian Age, and the United States will emerge as the undisputed world leader on all fronts. Beyond 1970, we have the potential for creating a virtual world-wide Utopian society—but with entirely new and different problems. We'll be going to the planets by then as Earthmen, and the space frontier will open new vistas to us. ◆

They Drive the World's Most Dangerous Highway

Text by DAN DERBY Cover and photos by PAUL STEPHANUS

THE treacherous road in South Vietnam known as Highway 1 stretches from Saigon northward through Da Nang and Phubai up to the provincial capital of Hue.

On this winding, mine-torn, ambush-infested road, the Marine convoy teamsters of the 7th Motor Transport Battalion earned the name "Rough Riders" with blood and sweat. They are the fearless drivers who keep the outposts north of Da Nang supplied. It is on this vital lifeline that the Viet Cong concentrate their attacks.

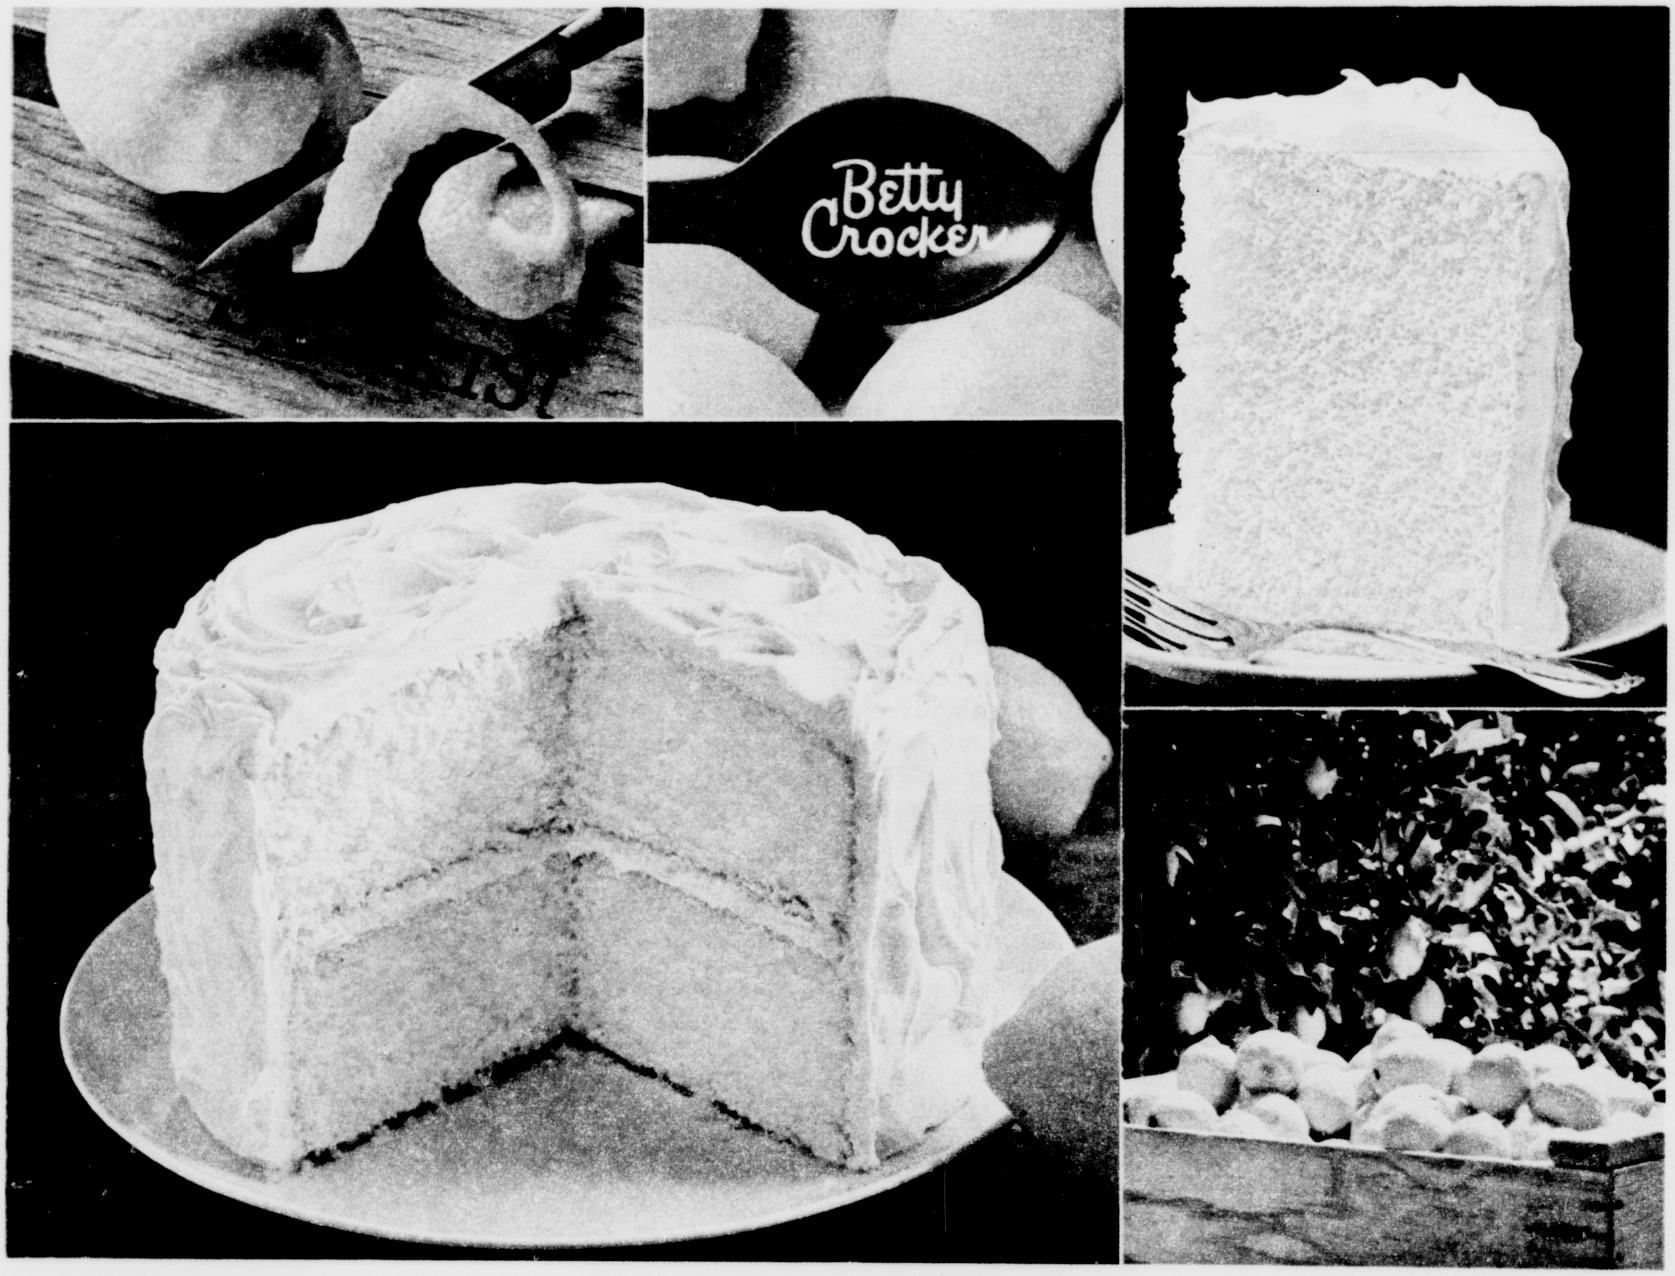

There are 40 to 50 vehicles in a convoy, and in every fifth position a sandbagged truck with a .50 caliber machine gun stands guard.

"Fifth—that's the worst place to be" says Lance Corporal Don Van Alphen, a driver from Hudson, N.Y. "The VC let the first trucks through, then hit number four or five."

Leaving Da Nang, the road crosses the heavily guarded Nemo bridge and climbs into the dangerous Hai Van pass, a mountain lane fraught with switchbacks. While there is evidence of mines all along Highway 1, this pass is particularly deadly; fragments of bridges and vehicles litter the ravines.

It is the tortuous bends in this mountain road that the "Rough Riders" fear more than the VC. "The problem is to keep the load from shifting," says Don. "We go down at 20 mph. It's rough then, but at least a sniper can't get a bead on you."

"Some guys get tired on convoys," Don continues, "but not me. There's something new every day." ◆

Despite hidden mines and ambushes, the Marine "Rough Riders" still carry vital supplies to beleaguered buddies in Vietnam

Crossing bridges, favorite VC targets, is a dangerous business. Marines place sandbags on truck beds as added protection against mines.

The Marine convoy sees grim evidence of a VC trap (above), an overturned Vietnamese civilian truck. Below, the convoy pauses for a well-deserved break, and Marines pass out extra C-rations to Vietnamese children along Highway One.

For families with little or no vacation time–

Try Commuter Camping!

By GRACE W. WEINSTEIN

Dad leaves for work each morning . . .

THE ALARM clock goes off at 6:30 a.m., and the man of the house rolls out of his sleeping bag.

Quietly and carefully, so as not to waken the rest of the family or to step on anyone sleeping on the floor of the tent we call our summer home, he dresses in his business suit and heads for the wash house, toothbrush in hand. The next sound heard is the car engine starting, as my husband Steve heads for another day at the office; the rest of us look forward to another lovely day camping beside a beautiful lake.

For the last six years, we have solved our vacation problem in this way—by commuter camping. With the shattering prospect of little or no summer vacation time, it could be the answer for you, too.

When the idea first came to us, we made our plans and faced that first Monday morning with trepidation. To our amazement, we found that not only does it work but that it is by no means original. Our camp site, only an hour's drive from the city and Steve's office, was filled with camping families and commuting fathers. Nonetheless, it requires some adjustment. Living at home is one thing, camping another. To combine the two is difficult, to say the least.

The joy of camping lies in its simplicity: sweep out the tent, wash the dishes once a day (discard the paper plates at other times), and you're done, free to loaf. Living outdoors, free from schedules, provides what we feel is a necessary change from the regimen of the city.

The crucial difference between camping and commuter camping is that the wife is alone all day, forced to cope with balky gasoline appliances and slipping tent pegs, without a man to do the camper's dirty work. With the husband at work all day, the wife has to learn to manage alone. But that shouldn't discourage anyone. Your fellow campers are a friendly lot; there's always someone to help you with any really difficult tasks. Besides, it's an easy way to make new friends.

For the commuter, there are problems, too, but none is insurmountable. Stumbling out of the tent in the morning, carrying shoes and toothbrush, is quite a way to start the day. With four of us, Steve, myself, and our two children, living in the same tent, there is little room to store clothes and only one hook in the center to hang Steve's suit and slacks.

We store most of our clothing in home-made bags which fit in the corner of the tent. Steve and I have an undying gratitude for permanent-press shirts. They are truly washable and wearable. He just hangs the washed shirt on the center hook with his suit, and he is set for the next day. Three shirts got Steve through a whole month. He changes to a pair of slacks at the office and thus gets his suits cleaned and pressed.

Even for mother and children there is a certain amount of routine—though far less than anywhere else. Meals, after all, must be prepared, even if no one particularly cares when. And small children must have a certain amount of sleep if they are to be fit to live with. So we usually sleep until near 9 a.m. (Steve doesn't have breakfast at "home," fortunately), have breakfast, and visit the showers and toilet facilities. From then on we have a lazy, unscheduled day.

Steve gets back around 5 p.m., and his reward for commuting is a long, luxurious swim in the clear blue lake. Steve feels that the hardships of the morning are compensated for by the joys of the evening —his swim, a dinner cooked over an open fire, and a leisurely evening with the children by the campfire.

There are certain drawbacks to the whole idea, but none serious enough to discourage you. If camping in the rain is unpleasant, commuter camping can be a nightmare. We had many sudden thunderstorms last summer—at all hours of the day and night. Since we had no car or means to escape during the day, that meant taking refuge in the tent until the storm blew over. So Steve would come home on such an evening to find us in the tent, dinner unstarted, tent sagging, ropes unadjusted for foul weather. He always loves those camping evenings! One time, we sat down to dinner only to have a gale-force wind blow in across the lake, and we ended up with our hamburgers in our laps. But that doesn't happen often.

. . . while Mom and kids enjoy camping.

For me, commuter camping is a welcome change from routine existence. It gives me a chance to spend a maximum of time with my children with a minimum of other ordinary responsibilities.

For my husband, the commuter, it is all these things plus the unexpected deer at 6:30 a.m., the children's excited retelling of their daily adventures, and the general peace of the outdoors. For all of us, it is the people we meet, ranging from physicists to farmers, a range providing a breadth of experience we normally would not have. The children appreciate it, too, for they form relationships with other kids that are impossible to create in the city.

Maybe this summer there won't be so many thunderstorms, and we will be able to keep the insects out of our tent. But even if we can't, commuter camping still will be worth it. ◆

COLLECT $157.50 A WEEK—JUST LIKE WAGES—WHILE YOU ARE IN THE HOSPITAL

By taking 2 minutes to read the amazing facts below, you can learn how to collect as much as $8,212.50—RIGHT IN THE HOSPITAL—to spend in any way you please.

What if you should wake up to find yourself flat on your back in a hospital bed—and be there for weeks or even months? Think of all the things that $2,000 or $5,000 or $8,000 in extra spendable cash, over and above your hospital insurance, could mean.

Cash to pay the mortgage. Cash to buy food. Cash to meet car payments—pay for child care—buy gasoline—buy school clothing—pay a tax bill.

Your regular health care insurance is not intended to help with family living needs. The "high cost of living" is apart from hospital costs. Household bills go on just the same. Your family still has to eat three meals a day. The landlord or the bank still wants the money when it is due.

Just a few weeks of this kind of financial pressure—with nothing coming in, everything going out—could plunge your loved ones into actual want. No husband or father, hospitalized or healthy, wants his family to go into debt.

A Service of Americare®

It is to meet this kind of personal and family emergency that American Republic has developed the "1-2-3 Direct Cash Plan"—a service of Americare.® Here, specifically, is what this plan can do for you:

MONONUCLEOSIS:
Science Battles the "Kissing Disease"

INFECTIOUS mononucleosis, the so-called "kissing disease," still remains pretty much a puzzle to medical researchers.

But swifter progress in finding the answers to this disorder is promised by recent discoveries concerning its cause and an improved way to diagnose it.

Since there still are many myths surrounding "mono," the following questions and answers attempt to separate fact from fiction.

Q. What are the common signs of infectious mononucleosis?

A. A sudden rise in temperature, chills, sore throat, swelling of the lymph nodes (particularly those in the neck), weakness, headache, rash, and a large number of abnormal white blood cells.

Q. Is there a cure?

A. Not a specific one. Usually, treatment involves rest, aspirin, a well-balanced diet with plenty of liquids, and steroid drugs.

Q. Has its cause been found?

A. Quite possibly. Scientists at Children's Hospital of Philadelphia recently concluded that the ailment is caused by a virus resembling the one responsible for herpes (an acute inflammatory skin disease that causes "cold sores" on the lips or nostrils).

Q. If this virus is proved to be responsible, can a preventive vaccine be developed?

A. Very possibly but probably not for some time. Researchers say that much experimentation is needed for a sure vaccine.

Q. How can "mono" be diagnosed?

A. A new slide test has been developed. It is more accurate and reliable than previous tests. It requires just a couple of drops of blood and one minute's time. Former tests required two to three hours to obtain results. Now doctors who have rarely seen cases of "mono" can test for it easily. Its value lies in its speed and accuracy since mononucleosis often is confused with disorders like hepatitis, whooping cough, and diphtheria.

Q. Does mononucleosis strike only teen-agers?

A. No, it may be found in any group, from infancy to old age. It has become widespread among college students, however.

Q. How long does a case last?

A. This varies, usually from one week to three months.

Q. Is kissing the main way of spreading the disease?

A. Probably not. Although some viruses may be passed along that way, the major routes for most viruses seem to be utensils shared for drinking or eating, and by coughing or sneezing.

Q. Can you get this disease more than once?

A. Yes, but it is rare and unlikely. Usually the antibodies created in response to an attack will provide lifelong protection.

Dog Nearly Goes Crazy from Itching

"Our dog is just a mongrel but I love her. Recently she has nearly gone crazy with an itch . . . biting out her fur, rolling and crying. We tried all kinds of treatments but nothing seemed to work. Then I bought Sulfodene. The relief was remarkable and now I wish you could see her. Her sore red back has healed. Her hair is coming in strong. I wish I could shout my praises to all dog lovers", says Mrs. Elsie Perkins, Round Lake, Ill.

Discovered by famous veterinary scientist, Dr. A.C. Merrick, SULFODENE liquid medication works fast to stop fungus itch, heal itch-sores (often called mange, eczema, hot spots). So soothing, the most frenzied itching is relieved almost instantly. Quickly promotes healing. Open sores heal over. Scales disappear, hair grows back.

Used by kennels and veterinarians. For dogs and cats. Get SULFODENE. At all drug stores, leading pet shops.
